SLEET GALE BREAKS FOG IN ENGLAND

Storm Sweeps Over South of Great Britain, Causing Floods as Mist Lifts

Sea, Rail and Air Traffic Disorganized While Heavy Fog Lasted

Canadian Press
London, Dec. 11.—Southern England and the Channel emerged this afternoon from a fog which had tied up land and shipping traffic for two days, but there was not much improvement, for rain poured out of a clouded sky and there was a gale of considerable force.

In the Swansea area many districts were badly flooded. Horse racing at Worcester was impossible, and the gale drove a sleet storm up and down the Channel.

Before the fog lifted uncounted hours of delay were suffered by shipping and transportation of every sort, by sea, highway, rail and air was endangered. Navigation in the Channel was almost impossible. Notwithstanding the greatest care, the captain of the Belgian Channel steamer Prince Leopold was unable to prevent his ship colliding with a breakwater as it entered Dover Harbor. The vessel was damaged, but for the slow steaming the accident probably would have been worse.

ICE AT HULL

The Aquitania was five hours late entering Southampton and had to anchor off Calshot after entering the Solent. The port of Hull was freezing up as well as being fog-tidden, and a fleet of trawlers lay outside, not daring to come up the Channel.

Trains in eastern England panted into stations hours overdue. Air services stopped and highway traffic became very dangerous, partly because of the fog and partly because of the slippery roads. A motorist, in Lancashire, skidded and crashed against a shop window, fifty passengers escaping serious injury. Other minor automobile accidents were reported from all over southern and eastern England.

STEEG IS TRYING TO FORM CABINET FOR THE FRENCH

Paris, Dec. 11.—President Doumergue to-day asked Theodore Steeg, Radical Socialist Senator and former Resident-General of French Morocco, to form a government to replace that of Andre Tardieu, which resigned a week ago after an adverse vote in the Senate.

M. Steeg said he would give the President his reply this afternoon. He is the fourth man asked to solve the ministerial crisis. M. Poincare refused because of ill health and M. Barthou and Senator Pierre Laval failed and had to return their mandates.

FEDERAL REVENUE FALLS AND DEBT GROWS UNDER BENNETT

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—With two-thirds of the present fiscal year now completed, the ordinary revenues of the Dominion show a decrease of $57,408,529 in comparison with the corresponding period a year ago. The monthly statement issued through the Department of Finance reveals eight months of the fiscal year reveal a total ordinary revenue of $261,720,309.

Ordinary revenue during the corresponding eight months of the preceding fiscal year was $319,218,838.

OUTLAYS INCREASE
The statement also shows ordinary expenditures of Canada have been increasing. During the eight months which ended November 30 last ordinary expenditures of the Dominion totaled $252,457,478, as compared with a total of $239,884,848 for the corresponding period a year ago. The increase, therefore, amounted to $12,572,630.

The statement represents only the receipts and payments which passed through the books of the Department of Finance up to the last day of November.

DEBT INCREASES
According to it the net debt of Canada then stood at $2,185,733,137, or an increase of $22,381,938 in the twelve months since November 30, 1929.

On the revenue side of the sheet, decreases are shown in receipts from cus-

CHURCHILL STATES INDIA PLAN MENACE

British Conservative Ex-Minister Believes Dominion Status Too Big Step

Declares Round-Table Conference in London Going Too Far For Safety

Canadian Press
London, Dec. 11.—In a slashing attack on the India Round-Table Conference here to-day, Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, former Conservative Chancellor of the Exchequer of Great Britain, declared his first opposition to any such freedom for India as would be involved in creation of Dominion status.

Suspension of British control, he said, would mean either armed Hindu despotism or renewal of fierce internal war. Loss of India, he declared, would consummate the downfall of the British Empire.

He made his declarations in an address under the auspices of the Indian Empire Society.

"The British nation," said he, "has no intention whatever of relinquishing effective control of Indian life and property."

The Round-Table Conference has no power to frame a constitution for India, and no agreement reached by the conference will be binding morally or legally on parliament.

NEW COMMONS

The Conservative ex-minister said the framing of any act looking to a new form of government in India would rest entirely with the British government at the time that necessity arose. It seemed highly probable, he said, that the British government would be in a position to do so.

SAILORS HOPE TO FIND LOST B.C. AIRPLANE

Boat Crew of 24 Men Hopes to Leave Seattle For North to Hunt Renahan

Inlets North and South of Prince Rupert Are Objective of Volunteer Party

Canadian Press
Seattle, Dec. 11.—Sailing from here of the ninety-foot motor-vessel Magnita for northern British Columbia to search the coast for trace of Pilot Robin Renahan and his two companions, lost since October 28, was dependent to-day on financial aid which had been promised.

Those connected with the project said they were getting in touch with the seven individuals and one group which had offered to give $1,500 to defray expenses, to see if the donors were still willing to guarantee the money. The twenty-four men of the crew would donate their services it was said.

MONTH'S SEARCH

Captain Larry Parks, skipper of the Magnita, said the money would permit a search of between three weeks and a month. He hoped to get away Saturday morning and said supplies were being put aboard to-day.

The Magnita is a small freight and passenger boat, which has operated on the main run between Juneau, Skagway and Sitka for four years, according to Captain Parks. The vessel has accommodations for thirty-three passengers.

The two who left with Pilot Renahan October 28 to fly to the Liard district of northern B. C. and the Yukon to hunt for the Burke party were Frank Hatcher, mechanic, and Sam Clegg, of Seattle, a mining man, long familiar with the northern country. The search so far has centred on the numerous inlets north and south of Prince Rupert.

Holiday Law Makes Problem

Retail Stores Study Legality of Business Next Wednesday

The question as to whether or not retail stores which keep open next Wednesday will be liable to prosecution under the Weekly Holiday Act has been submitted to legal opinion by officials of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, at the instance of a number of the principal retail stores of the city. The consensus of opinion was that the stores may legally remain open, although the wording of the Act specifies that the privilege may only affect the half-holiday occurring within seven days of Christmas Day.

This seven-day period has been interpreted to mean that the half-holiday waived must fall within seven working days, excluding Sunday, and therefore closure of retail stores next week will not be obligatory.

Officials of the Attorney-General's Department, when asked for the Government's attitude, stated that the city authorities would be supported in their course.

STRIKE CLASHES IN CADIZ, SPAIN

Cadiz, Spain, Dec. 11.—Striking miners and carpenters engaged in a forty-eight hour walk-out here clashed with police in a series of minor disorders to-day, and the city went without its business on foot, for no vehicular traffic was allowed.

Stores were closed and heavy police guards patrolled the streets.

Valencia, Spain, Dec. 11.—Work was resumed to-day by striking carpenters after forty-eight hours in which labor riots resulted in one death and several injuries. The city has returned to normal.

BOORMAN CASE IS ADJOURNED TILL TUESDAY

Manager of B.C. Bond Corporation Appears in Police Court to Answer Charge

Obtaining of $2,500 By False Pretences Alleged; Bail Fixed at $25,000

Hearing of a charge against Harry Eustace Boorman, manager of the B.C. Bond Corporation Ltd. of obtaining $2,500 in bonds and cash by false pretences from David A. Henry, 834 Craigflower Road, is expected to proceed in City Police Court next Tuesday following an adjournment this morning.

Mr. Boorman is at liberty on bail of bonds totaling $25,000. He was arrested yesterday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock by Chief of Police John Fry, by virtue of a warrant sworn out by Mr. Henry.

Whether or not Mr. Boorman will take trial in police court was undecided this morning. Magistrate George Jay placed the accused on election and R. C. Lowe, defence counsel, reserved his decision on this point.

The information in the case alleges that on September 24, 1930, the accused "did unlawfully obtain by false pretences from David Albert Henry valuable securities, to wit, two City of Vancouver bonds, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent, and the sum of $500 cash, contrary to the form of statute in such case made and provided."

The appearance in police court was merely a formal remand. Mr. Lowe said that A. M. Johnson, K.C., crown prosecutor, had consented to an adjournment until Tuesday and that he was allowed the accused yesterday following the arrest. The bondsmen were given as Dr. A. H. Tanner, T. L. Swan and P. R. Brown.

RED PLOTTERS ARE FOILED BY CHIANG'S TOUR

Chinese President Goes to Nanking; No Chance For Attack in Hankow

Kiukiang, China, Dec. 11.—President Chiang Kai-shek left here unexpectedly to-day for Nanking, instead of going to Hankow, as scheduled to direct the government's campaign against Communists and bandits.

Hankow advised said authorities there had uncovered an alleged Communist plot to assassinate the President on his arrival in that city. A raid on Communist headquarters there was said to have uncovered 300 spurious passes which would have admitted the holders to a welcoming ceremony planned at Hankow.

Authorities believed the Hankow Reds had planned an attempt on the President's life. Five of the alleged ringleaders were arrested and were reported to have been executed.

President Chiang's departure for Nanking was not believed to have been connected with the Hankow incident.

Simple Requests Made For Children Of Unemployed

"We do not believe there is a person in Victoria who will enjoy Christmas with the knowledge that hundreds of children of unemployed are without the necessities of life and suffering from the lack of warm clothing," said a member of the Christmas Cheer Fund Committee this morning. VICTOR AT POLLS IN VANCOUVER

MAYOR-ELECT L. D. TAYLOR

VANCOUVER'S NEW MAYOR GIVES PLEDGE

Progress Promised By L. D. Taylor After His Big Victory at Polls

Says Triumph Not His Achievement, But Proof of People's Confidence

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Dec. 11.—"It is unnecessary to say I am delighted with the result," this forenoon said Louis D. Taylor, who yesterday was elected Mayor of Vancouver for 1931 and 1932 by a majority of 5,229, his vote being 22,797 to 17,568 for Mayor W. H. Malkin, who sought a second term.

"I am pleased not so much because I have again been elected mayor of the fastest-growing city in Canada as I am that the citizens, in the face of what occurred two years ago, have shown their confidence in me," he said. Wednesday's decision was the answer of the citizens of Vancouver to the campaign that was conducted against me in 1928.

GREAT WHEAT PROPOSAL FOR RELIEF IN U.S.

EINSTEIN, VISITING NEW YORK, URGES ENDING OF MILITARISM

New York, Dec. 11.—Dr. Albert Einstein, father of a scientific theory so complex that few human beings can understand it, landed to-day in the United States and gave a simple forceful message pleading for an end to militarism. From the drawing-room of the liner Belgenland here he spoke in German:

"Kill the monster of militarism. Your political and economic position to-day is such that you can entirely destroy militarism whenever you set your hand to it."

The physicist's wife translated his address.

Surrounded by a reportorial multitude which stood on chairs about him to see over their heads, Professor Einstein, with his wife at a table and remarked:

"This is just like a Punch and Judy show."

Mayorality Contest Draws Larger Poll Than Cast In 1929

Despite Rain This Morning, Check Shows Total Ballots Cast Running Ahead of Last Year's Figure; Vote of Between 5,500 and 6,000 Anticipated; By-laws Also Help to Bring Voters to Polls.

Good weather this afternoon was expected to bring out a heavy vote in the civic elections as Victorians went to the polls to choose civic officers for 1931. Wet streets and a light rainfall this morning had the effect of curtailing the early voting, although by noon approximately 1,100 ballots had been cast at the polling station in the City Market place.

The morning voting was slightly heavier than last year, although this was expected, owing to the mayoralty contest, which usually brings a greater number to the polls than when only other offices are to be filled.

Speculation as to the size of the vote and the possible majority of the winning mayoralty candidate was rife in civic circles, as the same candidates opposed each other in a former contest when, however, it was a three-cornered fight. Some speculators estimated the vote at over 6,000, but the majority figured about 5,500. In the last mayoralty election in 1928, when Mayor Ansonby was elected by a comfortable margin over his two opponents, the total vote was 5,882, with thirty-four ballots spoiled. Last year, with a mayoralty acclamation, the poll dropped to 4,719, with forty-eight spoiled ballots. When Mr. Dean ran against J. C. Pennington in 1927, the total was only 4,838, with thirty-five spoiled.

With a greater registration of householders and licensees, the voters' list is slightly larger this year than last, and this is expected to have an effect on creating a greater poll.

Several candidates for aldermanic honors and for the police commission wound up the short campaign at the doors of the polling station, greeting supporters on their way to vote.

Meanwhile the two money by-laws which the taxpayers are asked to support by the City Council had drawn a considerable vote, higher in proportion with the main poll. Energetic work on the part of supporters of the measures is believed responsible for this.

Outstanding as one of the pioneer women fliers of the world with several records to her credit and holder of a number of automobile and travel records before she took to flying, Hon. Mrs. Victoria Bruce will be tendered a reception by the Victoria Women's Aeronautical Association on her arrival here to-morrow from the Orient on the S.S. Empress of Japan, with her Moth plane "Bluebird," with which she is making a world land flight.

Ernest Ewe will fly out to meet the boat and drop a silken flag and a message of welcome aboard for Mrs. Bruce. Members of the Aeronautical Association will board the boat to meet her. The vessel will be in Victoria for an hour and a half, and Mrs. Bruce will then proceed to Vancouver where her plans will be landed. A record of her flight will be made by the Victoria Women's Aeronautical Association on her arrival here to-morrow from the Orient on the S.S. Empress of Japan, with her Moth plane "Bluebird," with which she is making a world land flight.

SEVERAL RECORDS
Besides the fame she has won as an aviator, Mrs. Bruce has made many other records in her adventurous career. She has traveled farthest north in the world, and has held a record for crossing the English Channel from Dover to Calais by motor boat. She holds seventeen women's motor records and a record of twenty-four hours' continuous motor flying. Single-handed she has driven the longest continuous distance for man or woman (Concluded on Page 2)

Canadian Export Firms Urged To Look to Brazil

Vancouver, Dec. 11.—Canadian exporters should have branch offices in Brazil to compete with those of other exporting nations and take better advantage of trade opportunities there, says A. S. Bleakney, Canadian trade commissioner at Rio de Janeiro, who arrived in Vancouver to-day.

Canadian capital has contributed much to development in Brazil, Canadian banks hold the confidence of Brazilian business, and a Canadian financed company operates the lighting systems, street railways and motor buses of Rio de Janeiro, said Mr. Bleakney, who has created a good feeling toward Canadian products that exporters should take full advantage of.

U.S. Destroyer Carries Medical Aid to Freighter

Washington, Dec. 11.—The United States Navy to-day rushed medical aid to two stricken officers of the trans-Pacific freighter Golden Horn. The destroyer Preble was ordered from Mare Island, Calif., to intercept the vessel, reported about 600 miles from San Francisco.

The owners of the Golden Horn requested assistance for the master and an officer of the vessel, both critically ill.

The nature of their illness was not disclosed.

"GIVE A JOB"

Winter employment will help much during the Christmas season. "Annually in winter the volume of work decreases with economic loss to the community and frequently distress to the individual," says an official of the Employment Service of Canada, Victoria branch. "Merchants are the first to feel this loss in purchasing power, and among the most active in seeking to relieve the situation. The private citizens, however, can help considerably if they will make an effort to increase the amount of employment available by having any odd jobs around the house or garden attended to now. The Employment Service of Canada in their 'Give a Job' slogan is asking you to do this very thing."

"All Quiet" Now Is Barred From German Theatres

Berlin, Dec. 11.—Germany's board of film censors to-day ruled that picture "All Quiet on the Western Front" out of the country's theatres on the ground it "endangered Germany's international standing."

NEWSPAPERS' WORTH TOLD BY A.P. HEAD

Press Keeps Nations of This Continent Informed of World Events With Unbiased News

Frank B. Noyes in Address in New York Also Praises Canadian Press

New York, Dec. 11.—The value of the press and life insurance companies in producing an informed nation was set forth at the annual convention of the Life Insurance Presidents here today by Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press.

Saying that in normal times the press now fulfilled its functions of informing, explaining, and to a certain extent, leading, he said that the press was more broadly and more admirably than at any previous period, Mr. Noyes proceeded.

"The information regarding what is going on in the world, on which most citizens must base their beliefs and actions, comes to them in the overwhelming majority of cases through the columns of their newspapers.

"A grave responsibility is thus imposed on the press and its gravity is recognized broadly by newspapermen.

"To-day a newspaper may be Democratic, Republican, conservative or radical in its leanings, but it recognizes its obligations to its readers to give them, as nearly as may be, a balanced picture of the world's news, generally doing its missionary work in its editorial columns."

Mr. Noyes praised the newspapers of today as vastly better than those of fifty years ago.

"The Associated Press," he continued, "exists because of the determination of its members that no privately owned concern should have control of their main news service, which is the lifeblood of their newspapers."

"This determination was and is based on our belief that the property of our newspapers, and indeed the safety of our republican institutions, is founded on an unfettered news service."

"Granted an informed nation is a secure nation, then it is of the utmost importance the information supplied the nation be such as results in a truthfully-informed people, and I assert that from the Associated Press, the Canadian Press and from the competing organizations the people of this continent are receiving through the newspapers a volume of accurate information regarding the happenings, the conditions, the joys, the sorrows of this old world of ours such as the world elsewhere knows nothing of and our own people never had before."

"The information regarding what is going on in the world, on which most citizens must base their beliefs and actions, comes to them in the overwhelming majority of cases through the columns of their newspapers.

usual ability of my part. I won because the citizens had confidence in me.

"In a most unusual way, and in the face of tremendous handicaps the citizens have expressed their confidence in me. It is now my duty to show I am worthy of that confidence.

"I am sensible of the fact that few men in the history of Vancouver have ever had such a responsibility thrust on them. Those who know me best know I will endeavor to the utmost of my ability to live up to the expectations of my friends and the sacred trust which has been given me.

"I want to thank all my friends from the bottom of my heart for their support and the confidence they have placed in me. I wish also to tell those who voted for me and those who voted against me that I will endeavor to live up to my reputation of doing the best he can for the city he loves so well."

STATEMENT BY MALKIN

Speaking of the outcome of the poll, Mayor W. H. Malkin, the defeated candidate said:

"I hand on the torch of progress to my successor with the best wishes for the city and for his success.

"After all, the city has progressed in the last two years and I have unbounded faith in Vancouver's future if we all pull together to the limit.

"I have done my best in the rather difficult times which have marked the last year or so, and when I lay down the reins of office I bespeak for my successor the support of all citizens to help him develop Vancouver on a safe and sound basis.

ELECTORS DESIRED CHANGE

"I must confess I regard yesterday's vote with mingled feelings of relief and regret," said Mayor Malkin.

"I wish to thank all my friends who tried to re-elect me. I am not attempting to give a reason for the result of the election. We can let the reasons go. The fact remains the ratepayers wished a change.

"I wish to congratulate the aldermen on their re-election and at the same time I wish to felicitate the city on choosing such conscientious men to represent them. I also wish to express my gratification at the splendid endorsement given the by-laws.

"For the present, I plan to take a few days' rest. This has been a hard contest and I feel like relaxing for a short time.

"GREAT 'COME BACK' For Mr. Taylor, mayor of the city for seven previous years, it was a "come-back" of great proportions. It was in 1928 that Mr. Malkin ousted him from the position of chief magistrate by a margin of 2,100 ballots.

"L. D." who fought his first campaign for public office nearly thirty years ago, yesterday rolled up a surprisingly large vote, not only solidifying himself in his acknowledged stronghold but making great gains in what had been generally regarded as Malkin territory.

The vote was: Taylor, 23,797; Malkin, 17,568. A majority of 5,229.

BAND AND PARADE

"When Taylor's election was conceded crowds swept to the headquarters of their candidate. A band appeared and a procession was formed.

With the Mayor-elect riding in a small automobile, his cohorts swept along Hastings Street, turning to walk back and disperse at the Hotel Vancouver.

The band played "Happy Days Are Here Again" and the parade gathered strength as it proceeded through the downtown district.

The Mayor-elect puffed on a cigar, waving his greetings and smiled.

CITY'S LARGEST VOTE The vote yesterday was the largest ever cast in the history of Vancouver. The number of voters who cast ballots in the mayoralty contest was 40,365, practically fifty per cent of the total of 81,326.

Last year the total vote was 37,158, divided as follows: Malkin, 19,831; Taylor, 17,327; Low, 20,000.

The voters' list at that time bore approximately 74,000 names, so the proportion of citizens who exercised their franchise was about the same then as yesterday.

The two candidates broke even in the count by wards. Mayor Malkin was given majority votes in two, while Taylor won in three, four, five, six, seven and eight. The only ward gain made by Mr. Taylor over last election was in ward eight, which gave a majority to Mayor Malkin in 1928.

TAYLOR'S GAINS The feature of the mayoralty vote was in the tremendous gains made by Mr. Taylor over last election. He suffered only one loss—in points of total vote—as compared with 1928, and that was only thirteen ballots in ward two. Everywhere else he gained, from

LAPORTE SUGGESTS NEW BOARD FOR CANADA-U.S. ARBITRATION

"Canada has accepted the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice and has even adhered to the optional clause making arbitration compulsory. I do not know what the decision of the Senate of the United States will be as to the proposal now submitted to it for the creation of a world tribunal, but, as between us, we could not an agreement be worked out for the appointment of some joint commission or tribunal."

HUGHES' WORDS RECALLED "In suggesting this, I merely reiterate a desire expressed a few years ago by the present Chief Justice of the United States. Speaking in Montreal before the Canadian Bar Association in 1923, Mr. Hughes used the following language:

"While I do not undertake to speak officially on this subject, I may take the liberty of stating my personal view that we should do much to foster our friendly relations and to remove sources of misunderstanding and possible irritation. We were to have a permanent body of distinguished citizens acting as a commission, with equal representation of both the United States and Canada, to which automatically there would be referred, for examination and report as to the facts, questions arising as to the bearing of action by either government on the interests of the other, to the end that each, reasonably protecting its own interests, would be so advised that it would avoid action inflicting unnecessary injury on the other."

"I strongly commend the words of Mr. Hughes," said the former King Cabinet member, "and I earnestly hope something will be done to carry out his suggestion."

as low as 157 in ward three to 1,074 in ward four.

COUNCIL CONTESTS

Aldermanic contests were held in six of the city's twelve wards, all aldermen offering for re-election being returned.

The results were as follows:

Ward 1—Alderman E. L. W. Dean, 1,543; W. W. Lafaux, 824.

Ward 2—Alderman G. C. Miller, 2,375; H. W. Watts, 1,442; C. E. Smith, 851.

Ward 4—Alderman W. H. Lemke, 2,055; Lynne Browne, 1,343.

Ward 5—Alderman Angus MacInnis, M.P., did not offer himself for re-election.

FEDERAL PLAN FOR INDIA IS MUCH DEBATED

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent
London, Dec. 11.—The India Round-Table Conference here is coming to grips with great, over-riding problem of responsible government for India. The speaker said that the progress has been rapid, but even the optimistic expected. It has secured general agreement in favor of a federal union comprising not only "British India," but also "Princely India," or the native states ruled by their own princes and chiefs.

But once that Federal authority is created, what is to be its power? Will the members of the new federal government of India be responsible to the federal legislature, as the Government of Ottawa is responsible to the Parliament of Canada? That is the problem which lies before the conference in the coming week.

On it there is a sharp difference of opinion. On the one hand there is an insistent demand from India for self-government. On the other hand, a self-governing India is regarded by some as a step toward which India is not yet prepared.

said, that a new House of Commons, "far more representative of the strong patriotic elements of our country than is the present house," would have come into existence before such an act could be introduced.

He deprecated the raising of "false hopes which may lead to strife and suffering through 'perpetual attempts to avoid speaking unpleasant truths.'"

"For," said Mr. Churchill, "the facts in India have not changed. They are immemorial. The political classes in India are more than handful compared with the population."

Only one person in seventy of India's 350,000,000 could read or write, the speaker continued, and there were seventy races and even more numerous religious and sects, many of them in antagonism.

"Withdrawal or suspension of British control," he said, "would mean either a Hindu domination supported by an army of European mercenaries, or a renewal of those ferocious internal wars which tortured the Indian masses for thousands of years before the British flag was hoisted in Calcutta. Left to herself, India would rapidly degenerate to the condition to China, a land of suffering among 350,000,000 people."

The danger, Mr. Churchill, was

BURKE'S BODY TO BE FLOWN FROM WILDS

E. Kading and Bob Marten in Whitehorse, Y.T., To-day After Rescue

World Learns Story of Death of Pilot Burke in Rugged Yukon November 20

Canadian Press

Whitehorse, Yukon, Dec. 11.—The world today has the story of how Canada's cold and rugged northland claimed an aviation victim. Captain E. J. A. Burke, a Great War pilot who took up commercial flying in northern British Columbia and the Yukon last year, perished from exposure and starvation November 20 when he and two companions, Emil Kading and Bob Marten, were attempting to battle Canadian mosquitoes and a Canadian spirit. We are building a self-respecting nation, but we intend to build it on terms of everlasting goodwill with our great neighbors.

"We Canadians feel our opportunity for service as a people is in the maintenance and development of a national individuality. We have a personality of our own based on Canadian consciousness and a Canadian spirit. We are building a self-respecting nation, but we intend to build it on terms of everlasting goodwill with our great neighbors."

The tale Marten and Kading told yesterday was an epic of the north. They, with Burke, left Lard Pond bound for Atlin, B.C., October 11. Storms forced them to change their course and in heading for Wolf Lake, they were forced down twice, the second time proving too much for their plane, which suffered damage to its pontoons.

They remained with the machine until October 17, at which time they set out in an attempt to reach Wolf Lake, fifty miles away. Food, fuel, and Kading had a little luck in bagging game with his rifle. It was cold and the snow was deep, but the trio trudged slowly on. Finally, after forty miles of hardship, they could go no farther. Kading brought down a caribou, but Burke was too weak to eat.

His companions made soup, but it failed to revive him, and on November 20, after more than a month of battling the elements, the heroic aviator succumbed. Kading and Marten buried the body in a grave of logs, they knew nothing of the fate of their friend.

LEFT PLANE

November 25 their hopes revived when the plane carrying Wasson and Walsh flew overhead. They were too weak, however, to build a fire in time to catch the eyes of the speeding aviator. A few days later the Wasson plane passed again, but still they were unable to make a smoke signal. Finally they began preparing a pile of wood in the hope that the Wasson plane would return. They heard the plane again last Saturday and this time a thin line of smoke arose from the isolated men's camp. Wasson said Walsh saw it, signalled the men they could land and looked about for a good place to come down. Ten miles away was a small lake. They headed there, and having landed, began musing in the direction of Kading and Marten. A blizzard came up and darkness was descending, but the heroic rescuers continued on their way. Unknown to themselves they passed the camp of the stranded men and kept on for several miles. They then made camp for the night.

ATTRACTED BY SHOT

Sunday morning they realized their mistake and started back, shouting to attract attention as they went. Kading and Marten finally heard them, but were too weak to reply. Kading fired the last shot he had, hoping the rescuers would hear it. They did, and the four men were soon united. Kading and Marten were supplied with food and stimulants, but were unable to undertake the trek to the Wasson plane until Monday. The rescuers had reached the relief plane Monday evening but were unable to start for Whitehorse until yesterday because of storms.

It is likely Wasson will return for the body of Burke, but no announcement has yet been made as to when he will leave here on his mission. Kading and Marten appeared in fair condition on arrival here yesterday despite their hardships. Marten had two slightly frozen toes, while one of Kading's hands was frostbitten.

RENAISSANCE PARTY LOST Four men perished in the air epic now being brought to a close. Pilot Robin "Pat" Renahan, Vancouver aviator, Air Engineer Frank Hatcher and Sam Clerk, Seattle men, disappeared near Prince Rupert October 28 while flying to Burke's rescue and hope has been given up for their safety.

VAN DER BYL PARTY

A Vancouver machine piloted by R. L. Van der Byl started for Atlin, but was nearly frozen in at Thutade Lake, north of Prince George, and Van der Byl and Air Engineer T. H. Creszy, both formerly of Victoria, B.C., were marooned at the lake, while Reller Pilot W. A. Joers brought it out and landed at Vancouver. It being unable to get away with only a light load, Indian guides went to Thutade Lake with dog teams and sleds to rescue Van der Byl and Creszy, and word as to the progress of the party is now awaited.

MRS. MARTEN INFORMED

Wingate, Alaska, Dec. 11.—Mrs. Robert Marten was overjoyed here yesterday to learn of the safety of her husband, brought back to civilization by Pilot E. J. A. Burke and Joe Walsh from the wilds of the Liard River region, where he was lost with Emil Kading and Captain E. J. A. Burke since October 11.

Pilot E. L. Wasson is twenty-four years of age. He arrived in Vancouver from the United States three years ago and has since become a Canadian citizen. Wasson has been flying in the north during his three years in Canada, first as assistant pilot and after as chief pilot for the Treadwell Yukon Exploration Company, White Horse.

Capt. E. J. A. Burke, who died November 20, was an aviator of many years' experience, having more than 8,000 flying hours to his credit. He was classic at Twickenham and the rugby ended in a 3-3 deadlock.

Leaving the Royal Canadian Air Force he joined a Seattle aviation company as chief pilot. That company had intended operating an airway between the Sound city and Alaska, but it did not materialize.

Captain Burke, after doing some test flying for the Boeing Aircraft Company, joined the Air-Land Manufacturing Company, by which company he was employed at the time of his death. Captain Burke is survived by a widow and two children, Peggy, aged twelve, and Brian, aged two, all of whom are now at Atlin, B.C.

HORN IN CALIFORNIA

Santa Rosa, Cal., Dec. 11.—Eyerett Wasson, who with Joe Walsh rescued two lost fliers from the frozen Yukon country, is a California product. He is the son of Louis Wasson of Alexander Valley in northern Sonoma County, where he was raised. He learned to fly in an Oakland aviation school.

When he completed the course two years ago he accepted a position flying for the Treadwell Mining Company, his present employers. Last summer he flew from the north to Santa Rosa to know his family. The summer he is planning a similar trip while en route to New York. In New York, he wrote recently, he would accept a new plane for his company and fly it back to Alaska.

She was in the headlines as the "mystery woman" when she started on her present flight. When she left London, after trying out her plane for a few hours, her destination was unknown. She was shown up in France and it was thought she was on her way to Australia.

She was next heard of in Hungary, and then in the Balkan countries, and then in the interior of Persia, where she was forced to land in Iraq.

MISSING IN IRAK

For several days she was posted as missing and then turned up at Jack on the Persian border. After a series of spectacular jumps the aviatix finally reached Tokyo and was accorded a most remarkable reception by the Japanese people.

"SPEED COPS" FOR BRITAIN AT NEW YEAR

New Mobile Police to Control Highway Traffic After January

London, Dec. 11.—New road rules in this country which will go into force January 1, will include a new type of motorcycle and in cars, besides an additional force for London alone.

In the United States they are "speed cops" but in England the slang is "motorcycles" and the newspapers have compromised by referring to the force as "mobile police."

Herbert Morrison, the Minister of Transport, said:

"I have never been in America and to the practices of what are known as 'speed cops' in America, but I have no wish our police should act in a vindictive or bullying spirit."

"The job of the mobile police is to aim at getting order, consideration and decent conduct on the King's highways."

"There will be cases where the police must be stern, and the sternness will be the vigor of the law. There will be other cases where a note of warning and encouragement will be more appropriate."

Cambridge And Oxford Draw In Football Match

London, Dec. 11.—Oxford and Cambridge have fought a drawn battle for university supremacy in both rugby and soccer football.

At Stamford Bridge to-day the dart and light blues played to a standstill in the annual soccer match, the score standing at 1-1. On Tuesday these ancient rivals engaged in their rugby classic at Twickenham and the match ended in a 3-3 deadlock.

Strike at the cause of COLDS and SORE THROAT

Gargle Listerine every 2 hours reduces mouth germs 98%

In your mouth, a fierce and continuous battle is being waged. The forces of Health against those of Sickness. Nature against germs—dangerous bacteria that lodge and multiply in the mouth by millions, striving to cause illness.

Surely you can appreciate the necessity of using, every day, a mouth wash fatal to germs, yet harmless to tissue.

Physicians have long urged a night and morning gargle with full strength Listerine, the safe antiseptic with the pleasant taste. For Listerine kills germs of all types in 15 seconds. No faster killing time has ever been accurately recorded by science.

Gargle every 2 hours

The morning and night gargle is deemed sufficient in time of normal health, to keep germs under control and maintain a cleanly condition of the mouth. But when infection is actually under way, which is the case when you have a cold, sore throat, or inflamed condition of the oral tract, authorities urge that the gargle be repeated every two hours.

By so doing you give the body, now at lower resistance, the extra attacking force it needs to combat the ever-multiplying germs in the mouth.

Mouth germs reduced 98%

If you could look into your mouth with a microscope before and after gargling with Listerine, you would behold a remarkable transformation.

Before the gargle you would see millions and millions of germs, alive, wriggling, darting to and fro. After, you would see the same germs dead and powerless to cause harm.

Repeated tests, following the technique employed at great Universities, show that full strength Listerine actually reduces bacteria on the surfaces of the mucous membrane, 98%.

At the first symptom of trouble in the oral cavity, begin gargling with Listerine and consult your physician.

Do not be afraid to use Listerine undiluted. Only in this way can you get the full benefit of its germicidal action. Remember that Listerine is non-poisonous, absolutely safe to use, and actually healing to tissue. Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. Toronto, Canada.

ELECTIONS IN RUSSIA NOW IN PROGRESS

Villagers Vote This Month and Cities and Districts in January

By VICTOR EURANK
Associated Press Staff Correspondent
Moscow, Dec. 11.—The Soviet elections, greatly different from those of any other country in the world, are being held this month in the villages throughout the Union. Elections in the towns, districts and cities will be held in January and from the successful candidates will be chosen members of the All-Union Congress of Soviets, which will meet in Moscow in March.

It is needless to say that those who finally achieve seats in the important national congress will be communists of unimpeachable records, whose followers were workers and peasants and who are thoroughly in sympathy with party policies. No one whose father was a trader, merchant or kulak (landed peasant) has even the slightest chance of being elected to the lowest position, much less of achieving the seats of the mighty in the capital.

ONLY ONE PARTY
There is only one party in present-day Russia. Its principles are those of the dead Lenin, god of the Communists, and the much alive Joseph Stalin, who, although holding no official post, has a wide reputation as the dictator of the republic.

The campaign this year, as set forth in all the newspapers (which are controlled by the government and party), has had to do with the popularizing of socialist construction as embodied in the famous Five Year Plan. The booming of collective farming among the peasants; the extermination of the kulaks; furtherance of the new government loan, and promulgation of the idea that was constantly threatening Russia through invasion of foreign imperialists.

Investia, newspaper mouthpiece of the government, said: "The election campaign must be conducted on the basis of self-criticism. We must disclose the difficulties of our growth. We must reveal our mistakes. However, we must not allow our class enemies—the kulak, priest, speculator, etc.—to replace our 'self-criticism' with their criticism. We must draw a line of difference between self-criticism within the system of proletarian dictatorship and criticism from outside."

MANY DISFRANCHISED
The elections in every village and town will be carefully scrutinized by the higher election officials throughout the country have been cautioned to take necessary measures to isolate the kulaks and other disfranchised elements. Special lists of persons who, according to the constitution, are deprived of voting rights—such as kulaks, ex-traders, former aristocrats and priests—must be posted in public places in all villages and towns before the elections are held.

Candidates for village, town, district and city Soviets are appointed or approved or elected from party, trade union and social organizations at general meetings of the workers, where the choice is signified by the raised hands of the majority. From these local Soviet members of the district congress Soviets are chosen. In this fashion, from the original local or occupational units, the Soviets pyramid up to the national congress.

Efforts are being made this year to attract a larger percentage of women to the election meetings. Investia declares the number of women with voting rights who will participate will increase from forty-six per cent in 1929 to sixty-five per cent this year. The authorities estimate some 80,000,000 persons will take part in the present elections.

Saskatchewan, Sask., Dec. 11.—Dairy production in Saskatchewan has shown an increase in early winter months for the first time in the history of the industry, according to O. W. Andreassen, president and general manager of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries Limited and veteran dairyman of the province. Mr. Andreassen came here in connection with an executive meeting of the Saskatchewan Dairy Association, when conditions in the industry were discussed and plans made for the annual convention in Regina January 27 to 29.

SNAKES SET FREE IN BERLIN MOVIE HOUSE

Fascists Use Harmless Reptiles as Protest Against
"All Quiet"

Berlin, Dec. 11.—Snakes were found crawling about among the audience at yesterday evening's performance of "All Quiet on the Western Front" at the Kollendorf Platz picture house here.

At the same time it was learned from an authoritative source that the movie, which had been violently protested by Fascists, probably would be forbidden throughout Germany by the Supreme Film Censorship Board.

A panic which began to take form at discovery of the snakes subsided when it was found they were the harmless garden variety.

One girl was horror-stricken when she discovered a reptile curling around the leg of her chair. A policeman in a nearby seat seized it and assured her it was harmless.

Two more garden snakes were caught in different parts of the house. How they had got there nobody explained. The police had made only a random search of those who came and appeared at the performance.

Fascists charge that the film, which was made by United States producers from the German book written by Remarque, is a Fascist and gives an unfair impression of the German private life in the Great War.

CALL TO YOUTH FOR INCREASED
CHURCH SUPPORT

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—Rev. E. H. Oliver, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, told a mass meeting of Ottawa young people yesterday evening the world fight of to-day was between Communism and the faith of Christ. He sounded a challenge to Canadian youth to enlist with the forces striving to hold Canada and the world for the Christian faith.

The Moderator said peasants of Russia were willing to die for Communism while "some of the members of the United Church are not giving a cent a day that Christianity may win."

DATE TO BE SET FOR BIG TRIAL

Montreal, Dec. 11.—An application on behalf of R. O. Sweeney et al., defendants in an action for accounting taken by the Transportation and Power Corporation Limited, asking the action be dismissed on the main ground that an answer to plea had not been filed, was rejected by Mr. Justice Patterson in the Superior Court yesterday. The judge subsequently permitted the plaintiffs to rectify the technical defect in the record by filing a general denial as an answer to the defendant's plea.

The action involves the sum of $10,000, and is the third action taken by the plaintiffs against the defendants.

Principals in the case met to-day to discuss a date for trial.

Giraffe Travel In France Is Puzzle

Paris, Dec. 11.—Officials of the Paris Zoo are puzzling over how to transport several giraffes, part of a large shipment of African animals, from Marseilles to the capital. They have plenty of time to figure it out because the beasts must be kept four months in quarantine at Marseilles.

The puzzle comes from the fact that the tunnels on the railroads from the southern coast are too low for the long necks of the giraffes and transportation by motor truck may make the animals sick. It is recalled that in 1880 a giraffe was brought from Marseilles to the local zoo "on the hoof."

MR. TAYLOR AGAIN ON TOP

THE ECONOMIC SITUATION WAS ONE of the important factors which decided the result of the mayoralty contest in Vancouver in favor of Mr. L. D. Taylor against Mr. W. H. Malkin. When times are not good the tendency of a large part of the public invariably is to blame governments, whether national, provincial or municipal, without much regard to the justice of this course, and when in such circumstances office holders are candidates for re-election they often find themselves on the losing side.

Mr. Malkin was an excellent mayor. A man of large business interests, he became a candidate two years ago purely from a sense of public duty. If he had been guided by his own personal inclinations he would not have ventured into municipal public life. The same considerations impelled him to offer himself for re-election, after no little persuasion from many quarters, for his first intention was to return to private life. In other circumstances his public spirit might have won a higher expression of public appreciation.

The fact that Mr. Malkin is a man of big business and considerable wealth, and was supported by the principal business interests of Vancouver, whatever influence it might have had in his favor at any other time was something of a handicap on this occasion. This, and the further fact that he had the support of the three Vancouver newspapers, provided just the right sort of material for the kind of appeal his opponent was making to those who were discontented with existing economic and social conditions.

Mr. Taylor, notwithstanding his seventy-four years, conducted his campaign with characteristic shrewdness. Time evidently has not dulled his understanding of mass psychology, or his appreciation of the kind of case to present for occasions like this one. He played to perfection the role of the lone champion of democracy battling for the liberties and opportunities of the plain people. "A vote for Taylor," he said, "is a vote for democracy against autocracy," and for "better times" in Vancouver. He skillfully diverted the mind of a large section of the public from the fact that many of the difficult problems with which Mayor Malkin had to deal were inherited from the Taylor administration two years ago. He capitalized the opposition to himself of the three Vancouver newspapers, and drew from it the sinister implication of a great conspiracy against the interests of the community.

Whether the expectations of those who gave Mr. Taylor so substantial a majority will be realized or not lies on the lap of the gods, but even if they be not, the electors will not have an opportunity of calling the new mayor to account for two years. It certainly can not be said that Mr. Taylor has much to learn as chief magistrate of Vancouver, since this will be his eighth term in that important office, a record which reflects his personal popularity, experience in the school of practical politics and electioneering ability. His victory against formidable material odds entitles him to claim that he typifies the present spirit of Vancouver, albeit no one knows better than he how frequent and varied are that spirit's fluctuations.

GALLANT YOUNG WASSON

ENOUGH IS KNOWN ALREADY OF the exploit of young Pilot Wasson in the inhospitable northland to enable his rescue of Kading and Marten to be marked in the records as one of the finest pieces of work in the history of Canadian aviation. With tremendous odds against him all the time, mountains with which he was not familiar, climatic moods which might at any time have caused his undoing, he stuck to his job. It is not difficult to imagine his disappointment when he discovered that the gallant Burke had succumbed to exposure while waiting for succor.

What Burke and Kading and Marten went through the world never will know. Pilot Wasson will find it far from a simple matter to tell his own story. But those who know the north country in winter will realize the unequal struggle these men were compelled to wage day after day—a struggle demanding courage and stamina of unusual order. It is little short of a miracle, indeed, that Pilot Wasson found either of the trio alive after such a harrowing experience. The whole adventure of rescue and rescuer fires the imagination and leaves a feeling of gratitude that men of this type are among us.

AN OVERLOOKED CENTENARY

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO ON THE fourteenth of last month Henry Bell died at Hellsburgh, on the banks of the Clyde. It was due to his great genius that in 1812 that river was the scene of the first successful steamboat trials in Europe. As a lesson in contrasts it is worth recalling that in 1914 the Clyde witnessed the launching of the magnificent Aquitania, with a length of 869 feet and a tonnage of 47,000. Bell's diminutive Comet, on the other hand, was a mere twenty-five tons, and only forty-two feet long.

In this way, we are told in Public Opinion, a well-known London weekly, that a centenary has been overlooked. The Glasgow Herald then comes to the point with the statement that Henry Bell did not make a fortune out of his invention. As a matter of fact, the trustees of the Clyde gave him a pension of £50, which was later increased to £100. Canning gave him £200, and money was raised in Glasgow by public subscription.

"But he lived long enough to see the revolution which his invention made in ocean travel," we read further. "In 1825 an English yacht named the Falcon, of 175 tons, went by sails and steam to India, and in the following year the Enterprise, of 470 tons, traveled from London to Calcutta, mainly by the aid of steam, in 113 days."

Eight years after Bell's death, the Great Western made history by crossing to New York in fourteen days, completing the voyage in half the time required by a sailing ship. Bell's achievement is all the greater when we recall the prejudice he had to overcome. Even so prolific an inventor as James Watt was not very enthusiastic as to the prospect of the steamship. In 1801, when Bell was thinking of installing an engine on a small pleasure vessel, he asked Watt's advice regarding the engine. The famous engineer replied thus: "How many noblemen, gentlemen and engineers have puzzled their brains, and spent their thousands of pounds, and none of all these, nor yourself, has been able to bring the power of steam navigation to a successful issue?" But Bell did not abandon his ambitions, and after ten years of hard struggle and experiment ultimately triumphed where all the "noblemen, gentlemen and engineers" had failed, and placed on the Clyde the epoch-making Comet.

Throughout the ages man has shown a strange reluctance to depart from custom; even to-day that weakness is a formidable drawback to the inventor, and, like Watt, we are all prone to think that it is vain to hope for success where so many "noblemen, gentlemen and engineers" have tried in vain. The best way to honor the memory of Bell is to give greater encouragement and help to the inventors and discoverers of our own time.

THE PEOPLE WILL WATCH CLOSELY

AT A BANQUET GIVEN IN HIS HONOR on Tuesday, Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals in the Bennett government, took the opportunity of referring to the Canadian National Railways in the following terms:

We believe it to be the government's duty as trustees for the people of Canada—indeed as trustees of the Canadian National Railway itself—to avoid unwelcome and unnecessary increase in already heavy capitalization and interest charges. Neither I nor the government has any intention of interfering with the internal management of the Canadian National Railway, nor have we thought of anything but the most scrupulously fair dealing toward that railway.

It is in the public interest that the government, at this time especially, shall discourage expenditures that are neither wise nor necessary. That is part of the duty and responsibility of its office. But Dr. Manion may as well recognize at once that the public of this country will watch unceasingly with a very powerful magnifying glass the manner in which the government discharges its duty and responsibility in regard to the Canadian National Railways. If he and his colleagues are looking for serious trouble for themselves and the country at large, they will find it quickly enough if they begin to bedevil the national transportation system.

The declaration that the government has no intention of interfering with the internal management of the road, that it has thought of nothing but the most scrupulously fair treatment for it, is satisfactory as far as it goes. But the minister's actions will speak louder than his words.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE AND "DOLES"

The Balfour committee reported that unemployment insurance was "the greatest instrument of modern social amelioration." The time will come when many of our best citizens will feel ashamed that they ever deprecated it as a "dole" system. Britain has had the system for eighteen years and has extended it again and again. Germany adopted it three years ago. Many other countries have put it into effect. But Canada still lags behind and, as a result, after years of prosperity such as insured countries never experienced, is unprepared to meet the present emergency. She cannot find enough jobs to go around and in place of paying insurance benefits out of a fund to which the workers contributed she has to establish soup kitchens and dispense charity in the form of genuine "doles."

MISUNDERSTANDABLE WORDS

When Lord Peel, addressing the Round Table Conference in London, said the other day that parliamentary institutions in India "would not be growth, but graft," hasty readers in this country may have thought that he meant to brand the members of a possible Indian legislature as corrupt. Of course, the speaker had no such idea, but intended to liken the introduction of western political methods into the great Asiatic peninsula to the insertion of an alien branch in a growing tree. American readers may also have been at least momentarily puzzled when The London Times, describing early November days in the British capital, complained of "the impotency of small boys escorting their guys for the Fifth." Such a word as "guy" in the columns of our dignified contemporary, sounds a little shocking until one reflects that the London make jocular creatures of any description, but scarecrows designed to perish in a bonfire on November 5, the anniversary of Guy Fawkes' historic conspiracy. Closely akin, as are the common speech of America and that of Britain, there are differences of usage that may at times produce mutual misunderstandings; but fortunately, as in the two recent cases quoted, the result is likely to be amusing rather than serious.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

The Victoria Daily Times, December 11, 1905

Richard Hall, M.P.P. and J. P. Babcock, fisheries commissioner for British Columbia, returned from Vancouver on Friday night, where they attended an executive meeting of the commission appointed by the Dominion Government to inquire into British Columbia fisheries.

Weather Forecast—Victoria and vicinity—Easterly to westerly winds, partly cloudy and milder, followed by showers.

The Liberal Association of Esquimalt district held its annual meeting in the old schoolhouse at Colwood on Saturday evening.

First honors fall to Victoria United Association football team. In the initial game of the Vancouver Island series on Saturday afternoon, between the local and Egeria eleven, the former won out by the easy margin of 4 goals to nil.

This evening McNamee and Newman will meet in a fifteen-course contest at the Savoy Theatre. They have been training for some weeks and will enter the ring in the pink of condition.

New York, Dec. 11.—The first transatlantic turbine steamer ever to come to this port, the giant new Carmania of the Cunard line, arrived at her dock to-day.

By H.B.W.

WHILE IT must bore many good people to greater distraction than usual, I find, curiously enough, that the record of the little girl next door and her preparations for Christmas are interesting to a large number of weak-minded persons like myself. Well, the little girl next door has just seen that supernatural personality whom she calls her Auntie Glaws, and I have a true account of their meeting from an eye witness. Auntie Glaws, of course, has been visiting some of the larger stores lately and the little girl was taken to town especially to see him. My informant says the surprise of finding her Auntie had a long white beard and a very red nose almost stunned the little girl. None of her other aunts have white beards, although one of them has a red nose. None of them wears red pants thrust into high boots, and a red coat trimmed with white fur either. At first, indeed, the little girl refused to believe it was her Auntie at all.

WHEN THE old gentleman took her upon his knee and asked her what she wanted for Christmas, however, the little girl began to think that there might be some truth in the report after all. But she was so excited at the spectacle of this curious female relative, who had a white beard and a red nose, that she clean forgot the long list of presents which she intended to ask him for. All she could think of were some twenty twenty cups and saucers. And the more Auntie asked her what she wanted the more she replied, "Twenty twenty cups and saucers."

WELL, SAID Auntie Glaws, "have you been a good little girl all this year?" The little girl replied, "Cups and saucers, please." "Is this your third Christmas, little girl?" asked the kind old lady with the white beard and the red nose and trousers. "Cups and saucers, please," replied the little girl resolutely. "And where do you live?" inquired Auntie. "Cups and saucers, please," said the little girl, a little impatiently. "And is your chimney big enough for me to come down and fill your stockings?" asked the old lady. "Cups and saucers, twenty cups and saucers, I want cups and saucers," cried the little girl in disgust, and she jumped off Auntie's knee and fled to her mother, still demanding cups and saucers at the top of her voice.

WHEN SHE got home a few minutes ago she confided to me privately that her Auntie Glaws was a stupid old aunt, and she was not sure that she would get her cups and saucers after all. And when she realized that she had forgot to ask for the teddy bear, with the collar and red tie, the elephant with a tail at both ends, the giraffe with his head a long way off from his tummy, the train which says "Toot, toot," and all the other things, she became very alarmed indeed. So as soon as this place is filled with type we are going to write a letter to Auntie and burn it in the fireplace, according to the old and unfailing custom, which is more important by far than the dull business of this column.

BUT WHILE we are at the somewhat melancholy subject of Christmas, about which we compile so effectively to conceal our feelings, I suppose I must make my annual allusion to old Joe Blunt's turkeys. Old Joe Blunt's turkeys are sleek and fat now. They weigh down the great oak branches as they roost on them at sunset—grey turkeys, black turkeys, brown and white turkeys, huge birds with billowing plumage and bodies which will make jocular cold picking in the pantry before going to bed. This, of course, is the very best part of Christmas, far superior to the original roast, over which you must observe some semblance of manners, if not of self-restraint, whereas late at night, in the secrecy of your pantry, you can use your fingers in the good old way, as nature intended.

WELL, AS I said this time last year and will say again next year if I am spared, the sight of old Joe Blunt's turkeys roosting on the trees, scratching in the stubble, spreading their feathers with pride and nobility, is a sight full of pathos and the common mortality of men and turkeys. When you know that these noble birds will shortly be mere pickings for prehenal fingers in the pantry at midnight, you feel very sad. But you are cheered up remarkably when you realize that one of them may be in your pantry, well-stuffed with dressing, very brown and just greasy enough.

THERE ARE other animals out our way for which I can feel more pity even than for old Joe Blunt's turkeys. Turkeys, after all, are hatched into the world for only one purpose and have been for generations. If they are foolish enough to hatch at all they can't expect anything else. Their dismal end in the pantry at midnight is decreed from the hour of their hatching. But it is different with dogs. Since times long before men had pantries or turkeys at midnight, they had dogs, and dogs were first tried. A dog about to raise a family feels he can count upon his youngsters being treated by men as friends and equals, and with an affection not given to many of his human friends. But out our way, there are three large greenhouses and at the gate of every one there is a dog forever tied on a short rope, apparently for no other purpose than to bark at passers-by and to break his own heart over his imprisonment. For years this has been so and every year the dogs on the short ropes get crankier, less doglike, more like cranky old men.

NOW IT IS interesting to note that these greenhouses are all owned by Chinamen, and as I don't know Chinamen very well, I have wondered whether this attitude towards dogs is a common trait with that great and ancient race. If it is, the Chinese philosopher can reply, of course, that we treat our turkeys, and our beef cattle and our sheep and pigs, as badly as they treat their dogs. This is logical but somehow to a western mind, it does not meet the point. There is something about a dog that is different. And if the Chinese greenhouse owners don't understand that, if they can't find in dogs something which they don't find in other animals, well, I am sorry for them. They are not likely to rise above the mental condition of Chinese greenhouse owners.

RE SWEEPSTAKES

To the Editor:—I would just like to express my congratulations to Mr. Browning for his straightforward and sensible letter in reference to sweepstakes. I feel sure that he expressed the ideas and feelings of a large number of people and trust that others will commend him for his sensible letter, and hope that the expression of public feeling in this way will lead to success on these lines.

CAULIFLOWERS

To the Editor:—I lived a few years in California and know fairly well the kind of vegetables and fruits grown in the various districts. I can without hesitation say that I never saw such beautiful, large, perfect cauliflowers as now exhibited in various shop windows in Victoria.

In the district of Salinas, Cal., they ship thousands of carloads of lettuce at all seasons of the year to the eastern markets.

I am satisfied there is a market on the prairies right now for a hundred carloads of cauliflowers, so why are they not grown and shipped at this season of the year?

People here apparently have a want of confidence in themselves and are willing to let the other fellow (Asiatics) do it.

All Spanish should be extensively cultivated but instead it is overruled by a great extent with wild mustard and thistles and the farming is fifty years behind the times. It is a disgrace considering there is an expert mental farm in our midst to show us "how to do it."

I noticed recently a man advertised an acre right at our door for $500 with taken, what—at the same time—I know a party from Vancouver who paid

$3,000 for an acre close to Palo Alto, a city of 15,000 people and they are making a good living off it with poultry, fruit, etc.

PARKING COURTESY

To the Editor:—May I be permitted to make a small space is your valuable paper for the following:

With the period of Christmas shopping now in full swing the problem of sufficient parking space for automobiles becomes additionally acute. An aspect of courtesy in motordom which deserves more attention than it is getting as it becomes more complex is that of parking in such a way as to conserve the greatest amount of space. Even the casual observation will reveal much wasted parking space which could all be utilized if motorists would just stop to consider their parking technique. Motorists too often park their cars in the middle of a space where there is room for two cars and a little consideration at the time would have made additional space available. A check up on parking has disclosed the fact that only about two-thirds to three-quarters of the available parking space is used and there is possibly nothing more aggravating than to drive round and round a block and see numerous spaces that are almost but not quite large enough to put a car in.

The motorist should ask himself, or herself the questions each time of parking: Have I taken my rightful share of the available space? Am I using the space of two cars by putting my car far away from the next one or have I left my car in such a position that it is impossible to utilize other space near by? The answers to these questions will be an unequivocal yes or no.

There is room for improvement in parking courtesy and the Automobile Club appeals to every motorist to conduct a self inventory in this regard and endeavor to give more consideration to this vital matter at all times.

R. E. WEBB.

Secretary, Automobile Club of British Columbia.

FROM MR. DEAN

To the Editor:—In my capacity as a substantial ratepayer I attended the meeting convened by His Worship the Mayor, who invited me to the meeting, but as previously announced I did not go on. For coarseness of casuistry and discourtesy to the new candidates in only allowing them five minutes, I have not seen a parallel with His Worship's own chairman.

Alderman Litchfield's assumption that my reference to "the desirability of aldermen being of a calibre fit for a mayor" was directed at him was in error. I did not think of him in making the remark.

The dread the Mayor would create to my oft contended advocacy for a gradual return to taxing and improvements the same rate on the rental value of the property, is no credit to him. There is a certain revenue necessary to be raised; but bulk sum would not be altered by my proposal. The equitable distribution of the burden on the earning and unearning property is my aim, which would eventually stop the continued confusion of land.

The present mode of taxation, I have repeatedly shown is in favor of the rich and against the poor.

This question: "How much of the $88,114.86 of the Goldstream revenue (1929 annual report, page 28) is derived from sources that could just as well have been supplied from Sooke Lake, or should you alternate from one source and then another for supplying the city, do you credit Goldstream pro rata, and vice versa; if not, why not?"

This is the answer I got from the engineer:

"We have not, as yet, attempted to credit either the Sooke or Goldstream sections with the correct quantities of water taken from each system, for the reason that there are no meters on the three cross connections and the expense of installing them would not, at present, warrant the information obtained." I again wrote, "I note there are no meters on three cross connections. Doubtless you can approximate from number of days of alternation and previous current consumption for like periods. Please let me have this." The answer came: "If we have no time in the present time to go into the question of water passing through the cross connections."

There will be time if I am elected.

HUNTING FATALITIES

To the Editor:—In view of the increasing number of hunting fatalities which have occurred this season, I think it is most essential that some steps be taken by the government to check the same.

There is no valid excuse for the four deaths which were caused by so-called hunters at Sooke, Ladysmith, Duncan and Goldstream this year.

There are numerous hunters like myself, who have hunted around these districts for the past twenty-five years with no accidents of any kind, simply by being careful and using common sense.

The law says "only bullets shall be killed." So first, the hunter must see a deer before he is to fire at it. Even thinks of firing at it.

Second, he must see the horns on it, before he pulls the trigger. (There are too many deer left lying to rot in the woods even to-day.)

Now, sir, there is only one way to check these accidents which are increasing every year, that is to give the

SUCCESSFUL YEAR ENJOYED BY CITY ALPINE CLUB MEN

A. O. Wheeler Re-elected Chairman of Island Group at Annual Meeting

Gratifying reports on the activities of the local branch of the Alpine Club of Canada were read at the annual meeting in the Y.W.C.A. yesterday evening, when officers for the year were elected.

A. O. Wheeler, of Sydney, was again named chairman of the Vancouver Island section while other posts were filled as follows: Vice-chairman, W. H. Douglas; secretary, K. M. Chadwick; treasurer, Gordon Cameron (all re-elected by acclamation); committee, Dr. Irene Bastow Hudson, Mrs. Postgate, R. D. McCow and C. L. Harrison.

In his report, Mr. Wheeler congratulated C. L. Harrison on the excellent outings he had arranged during the season and expressed his satisfaction with the number of new members who had been enrolled.

Keen interest had been taken by the club in promoting knowledge in mountaineering. He hoped to see further study of the use of ice axes and ropes when the club started its operations.

Mr. Wheeler also spoke of the club's camp at Maligne Lake, where Lieutenant-Governor Bruce and Miss MacKenzie had visited. Next year, the chairman stated, the big camp would be held in the "Producers' Valley," close to Lake O'Hara.

GOOD ENROLLMENT

After giving a short resume of the activities of the local club last year, K. M. Chadwick announced that its local enrollment was now 108 members. Satisfactory financial conditions were being enjoyed by the group, Gordon Cameron, treasurer, told the gathering, adding that a small honorarium had been given the secretary in appreciation of his work.

S. H. Mitchell, secretary of the Alpine Club of Canada since its inception in 1900, was welcomed to the meeting, and "votes of thanks" were passed to Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. James White (of Sidney), and Dr. Irene Hudson and Mr. Hudson.

Responsibility to the members of the section; to the chairman; and to Mr. and Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Haddow, and Gordon Cameron in connection with the Regional camp operations. Mr. Harrison's informal report as outgoing chairman touched on some of the harder climbs of the season just ended, with special reference to that up Mount Maxwell, Salt Spring Island, and the expedition to the canyons on the north fork of the Leech.

Langford

The second of the series of social evenings organized by the Chain Conservative Association will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Tom Thum Tea Rooms. Cards will be played and prizes will be given. Members of the executive will meet at 7:30 o'clock.

W. H. M. May, school inspector, visited the senior and junior classes this week.

The Girl Guides' meeting will be held on Saturday afternoon at Langford Lodge.

A general meeting of the Prince Edward Branch, No. 91, of the Canadian Legion will be held on Saturday, December 13 at 8:30 o'clock in the club house on the Island Highway.

The Women's Auxiliary will meet in the club house annex on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Harry M. Yates, who has been visiting in Seattle, is staying with her relations in Langford.

SARGON BROUGHT HEALTH TO HER HOME, SHE SAYS

"I don't believe there could be a better medicine than Sargon for people in middle life," recently said Mrs. Margaret A. I. Milligan, 1072 Howe Street, Vancouver.

"Like so many women my age, everything seemed to be wrong; pains in my right side and back, sleepless nights, a heavy 'half-dead' feeling when I got up in the morning, and a constant day without a headache. Whenever I did sleep I'd have dreadful nightmares. There was a breaking out across my shoulders and chest; my skin was sallow and I had a stinging feeling in my limbs from poor circulation.

"Sargon's action on my entire system has been perfectly wonderful. Every ailment I had disappeared after three bottles. I'm not troubled with horrible dreams any more, but sleep fine and get up feeling lively and cheerful. Even that breaking out on my skin is gone and my stomach feels as good as ever."

The Sargon Pills cleared my system of poisons and got me regulated perfectly. My husband has also taken Sargon with splendid results. It has brought new health and happiness to our home."

Mayor Reviews City Business For Year; Finances Explained

Major Projects Undertaken by Council This Year Outlined by Mayor Ansonb in Election Talk Yesterday Evening; Says Some Council Members Now See Benefit of Departing From "Pay As You Go" Policy.

Discussing in detail the Willows fair grounds development, the Dardanelles widening proposal, the grain elevator and several other projects which have been before the City Council during the year, Mayor Ansonb, at an election meeting in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday evening, gave an account of his stewardship.

The Mayor's speech was as follows: "Following an established custom of long standing inaugurated and followed by many of my predecessors in office, I have called this public meeting in order to give you a general survey of your current year's business, to be followed by short addresses of those of my present colleagues who are again offering themselves for election, and in order to give any new candidates an opportunity of saying a few words to you in support of the claims to your endorsement."

"You will remember that at the meeting held last year in this hall at about the same time, I was privileged to advise you that we had succeeded in securing from the Prime Minister and his Government an offer of help to finance some necessary development and construction at the Willows Grounds."

"It has been a long and tedious programme to get that policy in shape for your subsequent approval because, before it could be definitely outlined, it was necessary to make some arrangement or other for the moving of the existing race track and grand stand to a new position in order to lay out the location of the new buildings in a suitable place."

NEW RACE TRACK

"At the end of April the council was approached by the Colwood Park Racing Association with an offer to erect a new grandstand and remove the race track to a new location at a cost of $30,000, or more on condition that they secured a lease equivalent to a twelve-year period covering the racing rights."

"While the council seemed to agree at the time to the principal involved in it, early in the negotiations, became apparent that there was a wide difference of opinion between all the parties concerned, as soon as the suggested agreement was in such form that it could be properly analyzed."

"The outstanding desire, I think, of all or nearly all of the members of the council, was to see that automatic betting machines were used. There was much trouble over this point owing to a legal or other battle then raging between the agents or owners of the machines and the racing company."

"The racing company expressed willingness to use machines if they could be secured at a given rate per cent of the monies paid through them; and desired that the council incorporate that provision in the lease. We were unwilling and unable to do that for obvious reasons. It being no part of the council's duty to tell any company on what basis it must lease or sell its products to any other company who happened to be leasing land from the city."

CAME TO DEADLOCK

"These negotiations extended over a long period, and finally came to a complete deadlock. This deadlock was eventually broken by the council agreeing that machines must be used if available to the Racing Association. In other words, if the machines could be secured under any circumstances and were satisfactory to the government, they must be used."

"After a long struggle we finally agreed, and the contract was signed. When the first race meet was held, we found no machines available and the penalty clause for 'non-use' had to be enforced; i.e., that they pay $600 for non-use of them."

"Now it seemed to be the impression that the public desired the use of betting machines, and the council has taken every step it can to see that they are made available to the racing association, and if that is possible they will be used."

"Having settled the race track problem, the council was then able to proceed with its plan of development. Two plans were prepared, one for a horse show and cattle judging building, the other for a manufacturers' display building. The latter one that the Chamber of Commerce and other bodies have been asking for for a long time. The general plan of the grounds and the location of the new buildings recorded thereon is on the wall for you to see and forms the basis of the by-law on which you are asked to vote to-morrow.

"It is very necessary that everybody should clearly understand the financial structure under which the by-law is submitted. The whole cost of this development, including the two buildings and a small amount to be devoted to the improvement of the grounds at the entrance to the exhibition, will cost approximately $70,000 and that is the amount of the by-law placed before you."

FINANCES OF PROJECT

"It should be understood that this money is to be borrowed over a period of ten years; and that the Provincial Government has agreed to pay half of the cost; that is they will give the city, each year for the next ten years, an annual sum of $4,500 which will take care of the sinking fund and interest on half of the loan, namely, $35,000—leaving the city to provide the other $35,000. The amount required annually by the city to provide the half is, of course, approximately the same as the governments, viz. $4,500 odd; towards this sum the association has leased tentatively, for a period of five years, the space in the new building, should it be constructed, for a rental of roughly $1,400. These agreements, I understand, are signed and in the hands of the association secretary."

"The Oak Bay Municipality has agreed with the city, in the event of the by-law passing, it will give a grant to the association equal to the difference between $1,500, the amount it has previously paid, and the total taxes on the buildings and grounds with the exception of local improvements and frontage taxes. This will amount on the basis of last year's tax bill to some $600, and would, of course, be worth considerably more when the value of the new buildings are included."

"You will, therefore, readily see that the rent to be secured, plus the rebate of tax, can be used to reduce the amount required each year to take care of the city's liability, leaving approximately $2,500 as the net charge."

"I hope I have made this perfectly clear. It is important to understand how small the amount is that will have to come from the tax rate in order to secure this development and the Government grant."

"It is equally important that you should realize that, while the by-law must of necessity be drawn and voted on for $70,000, only half has to be provided by the city. If the government had chosen to give us a straight grant of $35,000, our by-law need only have been for a like amount, but they chose to as we are doing, provide the money over a period of years."

WILL GIVE EMPLOYMENT

"If the by-law receives your endorsement, it will go a long way to relieve the unemployment existing during the two months of the year, January and February, when work is very difficult to obtain."

"Now you will remember that, prior to my election in 1928 and again last year, I made a very sincere effort to induce my colleagues to pass into the discard that old so-called 'Pay as you go policy' in so far as it related to new development. I had to admit last year complete failure—up until a few years ago—or at most the odd week, I must still admit failure, but recently to some limited degree, I feel more sanguine of success, at least some of those aldermen so positively opposed to it are changing their attitude, and it may be possible that the future will show that sufficient change in outlook has developed to at least take some important matters under discussion."

DARDANELLES WIDENING

"Early in the year I discussed with my colleagues, in 1928 and again last year, had been fully discussed during the last election, the question of widening the Dardanelles. We agreed unanimously to go ahead and secure all the property we could on a reasonable basis and as equitable as possible. After months of negotiations we secured no less than 66.4 per cent of the total frontage, and each purchase was agreed upon by every member of the board."

"Having got that far and not being able to make a satisfactory deal with any of the remaining owners, the next step necessary was to expropriate the piece of frontage required. Before attempting to do this we engaged the services of two of the best known land valuers in the city who gave us an estimate of what they considered a fair and equitable compensation for the city to pay when the matter went to the courts for settlement."

"It should be understood that in 1919 the city secured the right from the Legislature in dealing with matters of this kind that, by passing a by-law in the council, it automatically expropriated the piece of land required. The owner of the land, having the right, if he is not satisfied with the amount the city offers him by way of compensation, to sue the city for what he considers a fair value, and the judge will settle the amount from the evidence submitted by both parties. The only difference being, if the claim is for $3,500 or less, it goes to a County Court Judge; if $3,501 or more to a Supreme Court Judge."

"Now at first blush this sometimes looks to be unfair, but if you think it over clearly you will realize that it is eminently fair to both parties. It places the city in the position of not having—as sometimes happens—a very important and necessary civic development held up because perhaps one owner refuses to sell the piece required, and in consequence of his action the undertaking never being possible, or, in another case, the owner demanding an outrageous price that the city could not justify the amount required to pay for it. And it also has the effect of prohibiting the city from expropriating an owner out of a piece of property for an unfair price. If he is not satisfied with the offer made, while he cannot now refuse to sell the piece, he can refuse the price offered and ask the court for settlement."

"COMPENSATION DECIDED
"Now in the particular case of the Dardanelles there is only one place that will require any extensive structural alterations, and the valuator gave it as their opinion that $16,000 odd—plus these alterations—would be likely the amount a court would consider as

HEROIC BRITISH NURSE WILL WED AMERICAN

Former Kathleen Burke, Twice Widowed, to Marry Man She Met in Trenches

Los Angeles, Dec. 11.—A friendship born in the horror of a great war is being consummated in marriage here next Tuesday Mrs. Kathleen Burke McLean, former British nurse, and Girard Van Basko, an artist and a descendant of pioneer New York and Philadelphia families.

Application for a marriage license was filed yesterday by Mrs. Burke and Girard Van Basko. Mrs. Burke is forty-four, and Van Basko is thirty-three. Both live in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Twelve years ago, while the allies' heavy artillery thundered death over Solomons, Mrs. McLean, then Kathleen Burke, and known over the breadth of the Western Front as "The Angel of France," and Hale, an American ambulance driver, met by chance.

In the passing of these years, Mrs. McLean came to the United States and married twice, only to experience a measure of the sorrow which she saw ministered to among the soldiers of the war. In 1920, she married Fredrick Forrest Peabody of Santa Barbara. He died in 1927 and two years later, she married Col. John McLean, mining engineer. Returning to Santa Barbara from their honeymoon, their car collided with another and Col. McLean died ten days after the wedding. She was hurt slightly but recovered.

Overwhelmed by these tragic experiences, Mrs. McLean joined an expedition to Peru to make explorations among the ruins of ancient Mayan life. There she again met Hale.

During the war, Mrs. McLean was decorated ten times for heroic work. She was the first woman to enter Verdun during the German siege and led Britain's nurses into the trenches of her country's troops. While she was most widely known as "The Angel of France," soldiers also knew her under the sobriquet "The Lady of Tenderness and Pity."

In America, during her quest for support of the Red Cross, she was heralded as "The Beloved Girl."

Survey To Find If Nurses Are Flooding Market

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Emphasis was laid on the importance of a common ground between public health and private and hospital nursing by Miss Ethel Johns of New York, formerly of Winnipeg and Vancouver, in an address to nurses here.

"It was inevitable that nursing should develop along specialized lines. But now there seems to be an increasing tendency toward specialization not only in the functions but in organizations," she said. Miss Johns referred to the fact that unemployment was causing unrest among the United States nurses. She stated that a survey was being made in Canada which would show whether the market was flooded with nurses.

He was born at Painswick, Gloucestershire, England. He spent most of his life in Canada. He sang at the coronation of King George, as he had at the coronation of King Edward. He also appeared in command performances before Queen Victoria.

Mrs. Watkin Mills, whom he married in Winnipeg in 1919, is en route from Los Angeles to Toronto.

The funeral will be held here tomorrow.

New Engagement Follows Airman's Broken Romance

London, Dec. 11.—The London Daily Mail learns from Dublin that J. P. Saul, navigator for Wing-Commander Chase Kingford-Smith in their famous flight from California to Australia, is engaged to Mary Elizabeth, only daughter of Dr. Frederick Drake Pridham of Baltimore and New York.

The marriage will take place next year, the paper adds. Dispatches from the Irish capital yesterday said the marriage plans of Captain Saul and Miss Zenu Marchant, a Dublin girl, had been cancelled. Shortly after this, The Mail says, announcement was made of the Pridham-Saul engagement.

SAYS WOMEN IN RUSSIA ARE FREE ONLY TO STARVE

Stephen Graham, Noted Author, Describes Horrors Under Soviet Regime

Home Is Regarded as Terrible Survival of a Dreary Past

Montreal, Dec. 11.—Stephen Graham, the noted author, speaking in this city said of Soviet life and literature: "With the marriage law smashed, woman in Soviet Russia is in a very bad position. She is free to starve but not to undertake the burden of bringing up a child. She has no security."

The picture of Russian life presented by the speaker was in no detail an all-around one. He spoke of the importance of the "youth movement" as a factor in the Communist regime, and of politically precocious boys and girls from nine to fourteen years of age terrorizing their elders by scrawling accusations on walls and doors, marching in mobs through the rooms of a house singing-insulting choruses.

ORPHAN SCANDAL
For years the orphan children of Russia have been one of the greatest scandals of the Soviet regime, Mr. Graham said. Deprived of their mothers by death or abandonment, they are left to the care of the state, and are being used by the authorities as pickpockets and other lawlessness, and into the country to perish.

In Russian fiction, love is regarded as a disease and promiscuity in the universities is prevalent to such an extent that a chaste girl is regarded as a tremendous joke. Love being based down to the physiology of an animal, the young woman is robbed of romance—a cry sounded in a book of Romanoff short stories. In this brutalized viewpoint, she is degraded and robbed of something emotionally enriching.

Rev. C. T. Scott of the Metropolitan United Church officiated at the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. McMillan, 1288 Mackenzie Street, on Wednesday evening, when their second daughter, Winnifred Mary, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas Francis Wright of Sooke, B.C., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wright, of Birmingham, England. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peach georgette, cut on long lines, with a train of silver lace. She wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair, and carried a sheaf of lilies. The only attendant was Miss Marion Modibben, sister of the bride in a pretty frock of blue delphinium lace with a short coat of the same material. She carried a sheaf of chrysanthemums. Mr. Joe Collins of Sooke, a friend of the groom, acted as best man. After the service Mrs. George Reid sang "O Promise Me." Miss Rose Ford acted as accompanist and played the wedding music. An informal reception was then held in the drawing-room. Refreshments were served by friends of the bride from an attractive table set in the dining-room. The centre of which was placed the handsome three-tier wedding cake. Mr. and Mrs. Wright left later for a wedding trip to the United States. They will make their home in Sooke. Among the many gifts was a handsome set of silver presented by the Sooke Harbor Fishing and Packing Company, of which Mr. Wright is an employee, and a silver basket of flowers given by the pupils and members of the Sooke Superior School, where the bride was employed for several years.

WOMEN WHO SUFFER
"The system is made so grand and pompous, and for the sake of an idea and a system they will destroy people in thousands and ruin the happiness of the living. One feels here, again, that there is in this apparent freedom and equality of the sexes, yet it is the women who are suffering. I have read this point of view in stories, that women have her freedom, she is an economic unit without requiring a man to make her so, but there is a sneaking feeling that they want homes. For the home is woman's institution, although in Russia it is regarded as a terrible survival of the dreary past.

"A tremendous change in the personnel of the Russian city is seen in fiction," said the lecturer. "In the middle class has shrunk to a small and rebel minority and the working class dominates. The educated people of the old regime try to cling together, but are not allowed to do so by the Soviet Government. Space in a house is allocated according to the number of persons in a family. A man and wife have a room to themselves, and the bathroom is shared by twenty or thirty people. Working class and educated people are put together under the same roof, and each person in turn is obliged to clean the premises. The educated people have refused to have children, but the others have them in swarms. One can speak only of 'fairly clean' people in discussing Russia," the lecturer remarked. "Stalin himself six years after the revolution wore the same soiled uniform."

Sister Mary's Kitchen

By SISTER MARY
"The proof of the pudding" may lie in the eating, but the pudding sauce is vastly important. Although the sauce is secondary to the pudding, it can do much to make or mar the dessert.

The pudding sauce must furnish any lack in the pudding itself and must emphasize the flavor of the pudding by contrast or by blending together. The rest of the menu has bearing upon it also, since a meal made up of rich foods should not be followed by an over-rich pudding sauce.

A baked pudding with a tendency toward dryness should be served with a liquid sauce. There are many varieties of liquid sauces, and of varying degrees of richness. "Standard" cream is an excellent sauce of moderate richness that is suitable for puddings of pronounced flavor. Sauces thickened with egg are richer than those thickened with cornstarch or flour, and although the rule is not arbitrary, egg sauces usually are served with chilled desserts.

FOR HOT PUDDINGS
Hard sauce, that rich concoction made of creamed butter and sugar, is particularly good with hot puddings if they are not too rich of themselves. Rich, sweet puddings are improved when they are served with a liquid fruit sauce. The contrasting flavor and lack of butter, cream or eggs in the sauce brings out the best in the pudding. Whipped cream is a popular sauce

For many puddings. It should be slightly sweetened but not made sweet enough to overpower the flavor of the pudding. Many puddings served with a liquid sauce are made more attractive if a garnish of whipped cream is added.

Flavorings should be added to hot sauces after they are thoroughly cooked and just before serving so that none of the taste is lost.

Very often the same pudding can be served equally well with any one of several different sauces.

Keep in mind that the rule for thorough cooking of all starches holds good in pudding sauces and if a sauce is thickened with flour or cornstarch it must be well cooked to make it palatable and digestible.

FOAMY SAUCE
Foamy sauce always is good with steamed puddings.

One-half cup butter, one cup powdered sugar, one egg, one teaspoon vanilla.

Cream butter in top of double-boiler over hot water. Gradually add sugar, beating constantly. Add egg well beaten and beat over hot water until foamy. Remove from heat and beat in vanilla.

WILL RESIST IMMIGRATION OF ORIENTALS

First General Meeting of Maple Leaf Association Held Yesterday Evening

Appeals to the citizens of British Columbia to help solve the Oriental problem were made by speakers at the first general meeting of the Maple Leaf Association, held yesterday evening in the A.O.F. Hall, Cormorant Street, with Harry Langley as chairman. The chief speaker for the evening was S. D'Arcy Carey, Vancouver, whose aim is to organize branches of the Maple Leaf Association all over Canada and who is commencing his work on Vancouver Island. The association already has a paid-up membership of 300, and is inaugurating a city drive next week. After the election of officers, Mr. Langley, who acted as chairman in the absence through the election campaign of President W. D. Todd, spoke first. He outlined the aims of the Maple Leaf Association and touched upon some of the problems with which its members were faced. "The Maple Leaf Association is a patriotic organization. It seeks to bind the citizens together for a common purpose; to help to solve a difficult economic problem which has been created by the influx, often unregulated, of a large number of Orientals, who are crowding out of industry a large number of our citizens," said Mr. Langley.

The speaker appealed to his fellow citizens to give employment to those who sorely need it, in preference to Orientals. "I would issue a warning," said he, "to the Chinese people who are engaged in the vegetable business, and not to attempt wilfully to drive the white grower and retailer out of business."

"One of the important problems to be handled," continued Mr. Langley,

"is the fruit and vegetable situation. We must find some way of encouraging the production of more fruits and vegetables by white growers in order to create a sufficiency at least for our local needs. Unless the Orientals are soon to control this entire business we must wake up and seek ways and means of providing for our needs. We need some system of co-operative growing and co-operative selling, both wholesale and retail. It was remarked at a recent meeting of this association that Orientals are supplying second and third grade vegetables to our white retailers in order to keep the retail trade to themselves. The Maple Leaf Association intends to meet this situation."

Mr. D'Arcy, who followed Mr. Langley to the platform, placed some arresting facts before his audience.

"The Oriental situation in British Columbia," he said, "must be faced squarely if our Province is to be kept from getting a foreign tint that will earn it the name of Canada's Oriental province."

"The natural increase of Orientals over whites is in the ratio of 4 to 1. It is extremely dangerous to the national welfare of any country to allow any citizens of another country to settle within its borders who cannot, by intermarrying and other ways, become assimilated to the ideals and modes of living as practiced by its own citizens. Canada has opened its doors to persons of the Oriental race who, by no stretch of the imagination, can ever become ideal Canadians. The Japanese attitude as expressed by two of the country's foreigners is: 'Japan does not wish her subjects to become naturalized, nor does she encourage them to lose their racial or national consciousness.'"

STOP EXPERIMENTING
"Canada must stop experimenting with this racial problem. Any nation that has tried it has learnt to its sorrow its disastrous and costly results, such as cleavage in the national spirit and bitterness engendered during low economic periods through unemployment. The most highly educated person, animated solely by the thought that all men are equal and all entitled to a living on this earth, is forced to acknowledge that this Oriental racial problem in any white man's country is economically unsound and dangerous to the peace of the world. We do not want to have bad feelings with any nation. We want to be on friendly trade terms with them all, but we will not sacrifice our sovereign right to choose our own immigrant citizens, for we want only those who can be assimilated for the upbuilding of a united Canadian people."

"Japan itself," added the speaker, "is so careful about receiving immigrants and granting naturalization papers that only fifteen aliens of all nations were granted such papers for the four years ending 1928."

"The first aim of the Maple Leaf Association is an united Canadian people. We must stop any further immigration entirely. A few figures will suffice to justify that action. The Chinese practically control the greenhouse and vegetable industry. The Japanese practically control the small fruit business. Before long, the egg and poultry business will go the same way. The Japanese are engaged in the following manufacturing lines: Clothing, boots and shoes, dressmaking, tailoring, shipbuilding, and aerated waters. Since 1924 Chinese have increased by 12,985 according to registration. The birthrate of the Japanese is five every day in the year. Alberta is practically in the same situation to the Oriental penetration. The Chinese are appealing for their wives and families to be admitted into Canada. The Japanese are seeking for full citizenship. There is no country in the world where the Orientals can settle and be allowed such privileges as they enjoy in Canada to-day. What is done?"

"The Maple Leaf Association gives you an opportunity of expressing yourself in the following vital matters: Absolute exclusion, control legislation and separate schools will to a certain extent alleviate the Oriental situation. It asks every white person who has Canada's interests at heart to become a member. It is strictly a national democratic movement, in that each branch controls its own affairs and all branches work in union with a central office for the express purpose of keeping Canada a white man's country."

The following officers of the Maple Leaf Association were appointed during the evening: W. D. Todd, president; R. Murray-Alian, first vice-president; James Moyes, second vice-president; C. W. Henry, third vice-president; James Raymond, treasurer; Harry Langley, secretary; A. G. Lambrie, G. W. Gillette, W. Dunn, James Talbot Jr., C. R. Prior, J. B. Acland, J. M. Clark, A. P. Horner, N. B. Pollock, F. C. Dillabough, executive committee.

MARY NOLAN CAST
IN LEADING ROLE IN CAPITOL FILM

An underworld drama which is in many ways remarkable is "Outside the Law," the Universal all-talking production which opened an engagement to-day at the Capitol Theatre. In addition to its many other excellent qualities, it achieves real distinction as a crook story which very powerfully touches the heart strings. The love story of two underworld sweethearts is presented with a rare quality of delicacy and charm.

Mary Nolan, in the role of Connie Madden, fully justifies her position as a screen star, and gives a convincing portrayal of a difficult role—difficult in that for the greater part of the picture it is in a measure unattractive. But this blonde beauty makes of Connie a vibrant character who dominates her every scene, and who in the end makes a supreme sacrifice on the altar of love.

HAROLD LLOYD IS SPEECHMAKER IN THE DOMINION FEATURE

Although one of his big scenes in "Feet First," now at the Dominion Theatre to-day and Friday, shows Harold Lloyd as an "after-dinner speaker," and although his elocutionary powers are very impressive in this laugh-making sequence, yet it is a fact that Lloyd has not made a public address in over eleven years.

WELL-KNOWN DIRECTOR OF LONDON STAGE HAD CHARGE OF "ESCAPE"

Best Dean, brilliant London stage producer who also has had considerable experience in the direction of motion pictures, was entrusted with transferring "Escape" to screen. He adapted, directed and produced the picture, using a cast of notable stage and screen players, most of whom had appeared in previous Galsworthy productions in the theatre. "Escape" is now showing at the Coliseum Theatre.

CHARLES FARRELL IN COMEDY ROLE NOW AT
PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Charles Farrell's well known love of comedy was kept constantly refreshed during the filming of "Soup to Nuts" at Fox Movietone City. Every day after working on his latest picture, he would visit the set where the "Soup to Nuts" company was working in order to watch Ted Healy and his clown gang of Racketeers do their stuff.

"Soup to Nuts," current attraction at the Playhouse Theatre is a Rube Goldberg story.

"LOST ZEPPELIN" IS
HERE AT COLUMBIA
WITH CONWAY TEARLE

Filled with thrills and amazing adventure "The Lost Zeppelin," Tiffany's all-talking production featuring Conway Tearle, Virginia Valli and Ricardo Cortez is at the Columbia Theatre to-day.

Its distinctive features are: Conway Tearle in his first big role as a talking screen star; showing of a huge Zeppelin in the Antarctic regions, a feat now being planned for the North Pole by the owners of the Graf Zeppelin, which flew round the world. The story holds great interest from start to finish. Conway Tearle is seen as Commander Hall of the Zeppelin "Explorer," who is planning to take the big airship to the South Pole for scientific research. A man who has devoted his life to science, he does not give his charming young wife the attention she believes she deserves, although he is deeply in love with her. Also on the same bill is "The Sap," which features Edward Everett Horton.

JACKSON AND JAPAN ARRIVE TO-MORROW

Empress of Japan and President Jackson Both Running Ahead of Time

Two deep-sea passenger liners from the Orient will dock here to-morrow. They are the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan and the American Mail liner President Jackson, both of which will dock within a few hours of each other.

L. D. Chetham, local C.P.R. agent, was advised this morning by wireless from Capt. Samuel Robinson, R.N.R., that the Empress of Japan will reach the William Head quarantine station at 10 o'clock from the Philippine Islands, China and Japan. She will dock at the Rithet piers about an hour later and before proceeding to Vancouver in the early afternoon will leave passengers and discharge cargo here. The Japan has a good list of travelers, among the first cabin passengers being the members of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce party which toured the Orient and Mrs. Victor Bruce, famous British aviatrix, returning to England after having flown from London to Tokyo.

The President Jackson is running ahead of schedule and will reach William Head at noon to-morrow, the skipper of the craft this morning advised W. M. Allan, local agent. The Jackson will berth at the Rithet piers in the early afternoon and will leave in time to reach Seattle by 9 o'clock in the evening. For Victoria the ship has an average cargo and several passengers from her first and staterage classes.

Old Empress Is Still Afire In England

Blyth, Eng., Dec. 11.—Fire in the old Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland, which started early yesterday, was still blazing fiercely this afternoon. The vessel had a sharp list to starboard and her tall steel masts threatened to topple at any moment. The old ship was docked here for dismantling, having being retired from service. An electrical short-circuit was blamed for the fire.

Railroad Men Now Favor Shorter Hours

Washington, Dec. 11.—Chiefs of twenty-one railroad labor organizations were on record to-day in favor of a shorter working day and week in the United States.

A three-day conference ended yesterday. The conclusion was announced by D. B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Railroad Firemen and Engineers (that prompt action to reduce the working time was needed).

His statement did not disclose how the rail men intend to proceed to gain this objective.

SAN FRANCISCO SHIPPING

San Francisco, Dec. 11.—The Dollar Line's passenger and freight service between California ports and Manila and Singapore, by way of Honolulu, is to be discontinued with the arrival of the liner President Hayes here Friday, company heads said yesterday.

The company has operated two vessels in the trade for about a year. The President Monroe was withdrawn from the service last month.

Dollar Line officials would not announce the reason for the discontinuation of service, but marine observers said it was caused by lack of business. For the last few months it had been rumored in shipping circles that the service was due to end.

The new Dutch motorship Tabian, which was built at Ysidoro, Holland, for the joint service of the Silver Java, Pacific Lines, sailed on December 2, to San Francisco, officials of the local Chamber of Commerce learned yesterday.

The Tabian will operate on the joint schedule of the two lines. The joint schedule makes San Pedro a regular port of call.

WAS LAUNCHED TUESDAY FOR SERVICE ON PACIFIC

Above is shown an architect's drawing of the new Dollar liner, President Hoover, which was launched on Tuesday at Newport News, Virginia, for service on the Pacific Ocean between California ports and the Orient. Mrs. Herbert Hoover performed the ceremony, and instead of the traditional bottle of champagne being broke over the bow, the ship was christened with a bottle of water collected from the Seven Seas by the captains of Dollar lines in 'round-the-world' services.

Ruth Alexander Is Due This Evening From California

From San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco, the Pacific Steamship Company's liner Ruth Alexander will reach the Rithet piers this evening at 10:30 o'clock. Capt. Frank Landstrom, master, this morning advised the local agents. She sailed from San Francisco on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

For Victoria the Ruth has thirty-five passengers and seventy-two tons of cargo, most of which is California lemons and oranges. The Ruth will proceed to Seattle at midnight, being due in the Sound port at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Most of the passengers who will leave the liner here will transfer to the S. S. Princess Joan and proceed to Vancouver.

Modavia Goes To London To Be Surveyed

The Donaldson liner Modavia, well known at Victoria, is now at London, where she will be surveyed and repaired, according to dispatches reaching here this morning. The Modavia grounded late yesterday when approaching the Thames River, when a piece of the Modavia's plating came to Victoria in the following dispatch from Dover:

"The Modavia, a 4,858-ton motor ship owned by the Donaldson Line, of Glasgow, ran aground under Shakespeare Cliff here yesterday evening in a dense fog. The Modavia signaled at the time of running aground that she did not need assistance, but at the same time the breeze freshened, dispersing the fog, and mariners on shore believed that the vessel's position might become dangerous later."

Ritth Consolidated Limited, local representative of the Donaldson Line, received a message that the Modavia has been pulled off and is proceeding to London for survey and repairs.

Ss. Paris Maru Now Crossing Pacific With Large Cargo

Japanese Liner Has 7,800 Bales For Seattle; Hawaii Maru Sails For This Port

With 7,800 bales of raw silk and ten measurement tons of silk goods valued at $4,000,000, one of the largest shipments to cross the north Pacific in recent years, the O.S.K. liner Paris Maru will pass Victoria on her way to Seattle on December 20. The valuable silk cargo will be discharged in Seattle and rushed overland to New York in two special trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, comprising a total of twenty-five cars.

The Arabia Maru, also of the O.S.K. fleet, with a consignment of 10,000 bales, which she landed in Seattle, after passing through Victoria, during the Great War, holds the silk cargo record, not only for the Northwest, but for the entire Pacific Coast. Silk was high at that time and the consignment was valued at nearly $12,000,000. Shipments of approximately 8,000 bales have passed through Victoria en route to Vancouver and Seattle, but not in recent years.

The Paris Maru sailed from Yokohama on December 7 in command of Capt. K. Hirano. In addition to the silk, the liner has 400 tons of cargo for Seattle, 575 tons of overland cargo, 100 tons of intercoastal cargo, 400 tons of bean cake, and 150 tons of bulk oil. She has five passengers for Seattle.

The Hawaii Maru, also of the O.S.K. Line, sailed yesterday from Yokohama for this port and Seattle. She is scheduled to dock here on Christmas Eve with passengers and cargo.

Robin Hood's Adventures

THE GOLDEN ARROW
The sheriff of Nottingham failed to capture Robin Hood by seeking him in the forest, so he decided to try a trick.

UNCLE RAY

that he would attend.

"I believe it is a trap," said one of his men.

"Trap or no trap, I am going," said Robin Hood, "and shall pick good archers from my merry band to go with me if they be willing."

A large number offered to go on the adventure. They put aside their garments of Lincoln green, and wore clothing that did not mark them as members of Robin Hood's band. After walking together for a short distance, they parted company, and walked into Nottingham by ones and twos and threes. This was to avoid being suspected of belonging to the Sherwood band.

Hundreds of archers were gathered for the contest. Some had come from distant London, and the strangers from Sherwood were not noticed.

Many fine marksmen were there that day, but best of all was a man clothed in red. He was given the golden arrow.

"Trap or no trap, I am going," said Robin Hood, "and shall pick good archers from my merry band to go with me if they be willing."

A large number offered to go on the adventure. They put aside their garments of Lincoln green, and wore clothing that did not mark them as members of Robin Hood's band. After walking together for a short distance, they parted company, and walked into Nottingham by ones and twos and threes. This was to avoid being suspected of belonging to the Sherwood band.

Hundreds of archers were gathered for the contest. Some had come from distant London, and the strangers from Sherwood were not noticed.

Many fine marksmen were there that day, but best of all was a man clothed in red. He was given the golden arrow.

RELIEF WORK PLANS PASSED

British Columbia Government Sends Signed Agreements to Ottawa

Agreements covering work to the extent of $604,219, most of which is for road construction and repairs have been forwarded to Ottawa by the B.C. Government under the unemployment relief scheme for unorganized districts of British Columbia.

Municipal agreements, ratified by the province with sixty-one municipalities, total $649,200 approximately, for work estimated to cost $1,699,000. The province's share of this expenditure will be $424,750, to which the Federal Government will add a like proportion, the municipalities putting up the balance. Provincial contribution to municipal works and works in the unorganized districts, on plans already approved, now totals $746,800. The Federal Government will match this expenditure in full for dollar, out of $600,000 set aside for use in this province under the Federal scheme.

Aprior work programmes, provision for relief of relief is going forward, monthly accounts forwarded by municipalities being transmitted to Ottawa for their approval by the provincial authorities. Federal, provincial and municipal ratios of the cost of direct relief will be borne equally, in one-third shares.

next culprit a jail sentence. It should be quite simple. If a man fires at an object, saying he thought it was a deer, bear, or any other animal, and it turns out to be a human being, then he is convicted and goes to jail from one to three years. All the hunters I have spoken to are agreed on this and I'm quite sure the public will very soon demand such a course.

I would also suggest that the method of issuing licenses to hunters be revised and more responsibility attached to same. Every person issuing a license should be a series of questions, which could be printed on the back of the license, find out if the applicant is of age, and, in the issuer's opinion, reasonably entitled to the license. I think that he knows one end of a gun from the other and the difference between a buck and a doe.

The very fact that these fatalities are increasing year by year, shows that either the law is not applicable to present conditions, or is not being enforced in a strong enough manner.

"THIS IS NOT JUSTICE"

To the Editor:—Without freedom there can be no power to change anything. Apparently few subject to authority care for or desire freedom: for this is, freedom of thought and opinion, both in their nature solely individual, and therefore opposed to static and conventional notions. Probably this lack of mental freedom is why conditions in Canada and taxation in Canada are as they are. The result of thoughtless, emotional unreason.

In this connection, having long ago made my own protest both to authority and the more to the purpose, to those (not the people) who control authority, I have been waiting to hear one of our voice raised in Victoria in protest against the retrial for the same offence of two stockbrokers who already have been tried and sentenced under Canadian law and by a Canadian judge. A prosecution apparently in the first instance promoted by Federal authorities, though forcibly, as I believe, really initiated by another and the

SWITCHBOARD MOVED WHILE CABLES SERVED

Long Distance Equipment at Telephone Exchange Moved Yesterday Evening

Victorians Talk With Many Cities Undisturbed By Transfer of Apparatus

While operators walked beside it, handling long-distance telephone calls, the British Columbia Telephone Company's long-distance switchboard was yesterday evening moved to a new location in the operating room of the telephone exchange building, corner Johnson and Blanshard Street.

As an aftermath of the recent change of the Victoria telephone system to the dial method of operation, the old switchboard at which fifty operators used to sit, has been removed from around three sides of the operating room, and the several switchboards and specially-equipped desks which remain are being placed in new positions on the same floor.

In preparation for the journey which the long-distance switchboard, measuring over twenty feet long, was to take, the cables connecting the board to the long-distance telephone lines were lengthened inside the operating room to allow plenty of slack, so that the board could be moved around without disrupting the service.

Inside the switchboard are numerous little switches called "relays," which open and close electrical circuits, and these, while pulled into the final position, return to their normal positions by gravity when released. The men doing the moving job had to be careful not to tilt or shake the board to an extent that would block the operation of these "relays."

Yesterday afternoon carpenters bolted wooden members around the switchboard to help hold it rigid. About 10 o'clock last night approximately twenty men under Jack Borrie began the work of moving the board, while the operators continued to handle calls through it.

DODGED PILLAR

The board was placed on a big timber, four inches by twelve inches, and was then moved on small rollers. When it started its trip it extended more or less north and south and east. When it reached its destination it still extended north and south, but faced west, and was about twenty-five feet to the east of its old position.

At this time the operators had been walking beside the board, taking care of the calls that came in. The family originally banded together for self-preservation. Eventually this idea extended to the grouping of several families in a nomadic band.

Following was the era of the patriarch. In that stage was found the genesis of municipal government. The next step came in the formation of the city, in which a group sought to maintain its sovereignty.

SAFETY IN UNITY
As men developed they began to realize that their own safety lay in unity. In pursuance of this idea grew up the small state under which a feudal system, a type of benevolent dictatorship, was maintained.

These feudal lords found that if they were to compete against the stronger ones, they were forced to combine into shires, or, as they were called, clans. These shires, became big counties, Dr. Davies continued.

At the coming of the Romans, the shires further co-operated to form the provinces, which were fought against a common enemy. The speaker outlined the working of the feudal lords against the absolute king, finally overcoming him and establishing a democratic system.

Returning to the family, Dr. Davies stated the seeds of citizenship had been sown in early times. As the individuals of the family loved and respected the members of their own house, they realized the esteem in other families.

Extending the analogy, Dr. Davies told of the development of appreciation of the rights of others in the community. This was illustrated in the ideals of nationalism, he continued.

But nationalism of the state was in itself a danger, since, in the case of war the state over-ruled the instincts of the family and became absolute. Another dangerous feature in nationalism was superiority complex, he said. When this state developed, nationalism was patriotism gone to seed. Once again he returned to the family, showing that it was the duty of the parents to give the children a "square deal."

The same thing applied as far as a nation was concerned in as much as it was an extended family. Carrying out this idea, he told of the interdependence of the individual and the state. That a man loved his native land was well known. Nationalism was exalted. But internationalism was needed, Dr. Davies declared, for the highest conception of citizenship.

Hothouse Tomato Market Stronger In Prairie Cities

Department of Agriculture's wire reports to-day from Edmonton show business taking on holiday appearance, but outside of the Jap orange deal showing very little increased volume. Box apple movement improving. Bulk apples continue to constitute major portion of business. Market weak, unsettled with fairly large lots of crates bulk apples on jobbers' floors. These are beginning to show depreciation and will have adverse effect on market. Pears firm and slightly higher in price. California field tomatoes cleaned. Potato market very unsettled, slightly weaker with no movement. Celery market clean and firm. Car of celery arrived from Vancouver, poor quality, selling at 5 1/2 to 6 cents.

Winnipeg business is slightly brisker. First car of California celery arrived and selling at $6.00 per 70 pounds. Some C grade McIntosh and Delicious moving, balance of McIntosh in bulk apples at around three cents per pound. Jap oranges about sold out. The potato movement at standstill. INTERNATIONAL OUTLOOK NEXT STEP FOR MAN

Citizenship Now National, But Must Extend to Rest of the World, Rotarians Told

Dr. Clem Davies Traces Development of Ideal From Age of Caveman to Present

An ideal of citizenship that extended beyond the community and the country to the entire world, making men think in terms of internationalism, was the next step forward in man's development, stated Dr. Clem Davies in his address "What Means Citizenship" before the Rotary Club at its luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

Dr. Davies traced the development of citizenship from the age of the caveman, through the nomadic tribe, the patriarch, the feudal, shire and county to its present national status. "Citizenship is very easily traced in history. First of all we have the caveman, who required a wife in a man quite unlike the present system, where a man chases a woman until she catches him," Dr. Davies said.

In the family was the basis of citizenship, Dr. Davies stated. The family originally banded together for self-preservation. Eventually this idea extended to the grouping of several families in a nomadic band.

Following was the era of the patriarch. In that stage was found the genesis of municipal government. The next step came in the formation of the city, in which a group sought to maintain its sovereignty.

Returning to the family, Dr. Davies stated the seeds of citizenship had been sown in early times. As the individuals of the family loved and respected the members of their own house, they realized the esteem in other families.

Extending the analogy, Dr. Davies told of the development of appreciation of the rights of others in the community. This was illustrated in the ideals of nationalism, he continued.

But nationalism of the state was in itself a danger, since, in the case of war the state over-ruled the instincts of the family and became absolute. Another dangerous feature in nationalism was superiority complex, he said. When this state developed, nationalism was patriotism gone to seed. Once again he returned to the family, showing that it was the duty of the parents to give the children a "square deal."

The same thing applied as far as a nation was concerned in as much as it was an extended family. Carrying out this idea, he told of the interdependence of the individual and the state. That a man loved his native land was well known. Nationalism was exalted. But internationalism was needed, Dr. Davies declared, for the highest conception of citizenship.

A writ claiming $1,272 as still owing on account of Saanich pupils at the Victoria High School has been served on the Saanich School Board by the Victoria School Board. The sum covers the years 1929 and 1930. The statement shows only $15,492 paid out of the $16,764 owing at the rate of $120 a pupil, agreed upon by the two boards.

THORNTON AND BEATTY FAVOR WARREN'S PLEA

Publicity Commissioner Brings Mission to Montreal to Success

Tourist Bureaus' Convention Attained Important Results, G. I. Warren Says

"E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railway, both gave warm assurances that Victoria and would receive special attention in the advertising and tourist programmes of their railways during the coming year," announced George I. Warren, publicity commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, upon his return from eastern Canada this morning.

Warren was sent to Montreal by the directors of the bureau to endeavor to attain for Victoria a number of concessions affecting tourist and Publicity Bureau matters. Until I have reported to the directors I cannot say more than that complete success attended my mission in all respects," said Mr. Warren.

TOURIST PARLEY
The visit to Montreal was undertaken after the adjournment of the Winnipeg convention of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus, the journey being made by Mr. Warren in company with Mr. Justice Arsenault and other delegates from eastern Canada. Mr. Justice Arsenault was re-elected president of the association and Mr. Warren re-elected first vice-president.

Mr. Warren expressed the opinion that one of the outstanding achievements of the Winnipeg convention was agreement by all recognized tourist associations to co-operate in placing the tourist industry in a position where it will not be harmed by unjust treatment of foreign tourists visiting Canada. Another important decision was unanimous appeal to Ottawa to carry out Federal advertising campaign in foreign lands for the attraction to Canada of tourists. A third matter of value was adaptation of a plan to encourage Canadians to spend their holidays in other parts of Canada, which was believed a step toward advancement of a spirit of Canadian unity.

All the provinces of Canada except Alberta were represented by bureau delegates. Mr. Warren and C. H. Webster, of Vancouver, have accepted an invitation to organize tourist and publicity bureaus in Alberta, and will carry on preliminary work by correspondence with leading Albertans. The governments of many provinces, the Federal Department of the Interior and the Federal Parks Board were represented at the convention.

Ganci Brothers Offer to Help Appeal For Children of Unemployed

Ganci Brothers' exhibition at the old Christ Church Cathedral, a remarkable working model of the Holy Land, will be thrown open Saturday afternoon for information regarding the suitability of the Forbidden Plateau as a site for the establishment of a children's summer camp. It was pointed out that it would probably develop into a camp for children. The members of the board were unanimous that every encouragement and assistance should be given to such a project as it was felt that no area could be found as suitable as the Forbidden Plateau. The publicity committee was asked to give the matter their attention.

FISH FOR LAKES
A letter was read from A. W. Neill re the stocking of certain lakes on the Forbidden Plateau with Kamloops trout, stating that it was necessary to definitely name the lakes to be stocked and suggesting that four unnamed lakes be designated as follows: Wood Lake, after C. S. Wood, president of the Mountaineering Club; MacIntyre Lake, after Mayor MacIntyre of Courtenay; Moffat Lake, after the president of the Board of Trade, and Simms Lake, after the secretary of the board. There will be Battleship, Mount, Amphitheatre and Sunrise Lakes to be stocked this next season. This suggestion was approved by the board.

Mr. Neill's action in seeking the improvement of a dumping duty on Chinese coal received the endorsement of the board.

Heber Cooke introduced a resolution asking the City Council to apply for a license for a seaplane base at Comox and asking that they make a grant of sufficient money to construct a landing float in Comox Harbor. This was endorsed by the board, it being pointed out that with very little cost an ideal base for daylight service could be provided.

The matter of boat landings on Denman and Hornby Islands to enable connections to be made with the Denman Island-Bulkley Bay ferry was discussed and the secretary was instructed to take up the matter of the proposed location of these landings places with the secretary of the Hornby Island Community Club.

Capt. Bales and ex-Mayor Pearce were appointed to represent the Board of Trade on a delegation to ask for a subsidy for the new Powell River Ferry. It was stated that representatives from Comox had been invited to discuss the several phases of the situation. The support of the Powell River business men will be solicited as it is believed that the new ferry service will work to the advantage of the residents of Powell River, as well as to the farmers of Comox.

Canadian Gold Is Shipped To New York Market
New York, Dec. 11.—It was reported in Wall Street to-day that the Royal Bank of Canada would ship $5,000,000 in gold from Montreal this evening to its New York agents.

The Canadian dollars, long at a nominal premium of a fraction of one per cent, slumped recently and to-day was quoted on the New York money market at 5-32 of one per cent discount. This rate would make the shipment from Canada to the United States profitable. While the Canadian dollar was at a premium millions of dollars worth of the yellow metal were shipped from New York to Canada.

SALVATIONISTS OPEN CAMPAIGN

"Keep Pot Boiling" Slogan to Be Heard Again; Many Families in Need
Good response to the Salvation Army Christmas appeal for the poor and needy is reported by the officers in charge. In the last few days numerous cheques from private individuals and business concerns have reached the relief headquarters. In many cases the covering letter expresses appreciation of the work done by the army in the social and relief field all the year round.

While 186 families enjoyed the substantial food, warm clothing and children's toys the Army was able to send out last year, it is anticipated that this number will be considerably increased this year, if no worthy cause is to be passed up.

Not only is every case the Army attends to investigated from the standpoint of need and worthiness, but also a check is made through the Christmas exchange to see that duplication does not occur in reference to any other Christmas appeal in the city.

On Saturday the familiar slogan, "Keep the Pot Boiling," will be heard upon the street corners, and it is hoped that the response will be a generous one.

Shamrock V Flirted With Davey Jones' Locker On Return Voyage

Lipton's Yacht Had Bow Wrenched Open and Deck Shredded to Shreds

Binnacle Torn Out of Deck and Swept Overboard Along With Compass

Yacht Made 300 Miles in Twenty-three and Half Hours

A GRAPHIC and thrilling tale of how Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's America's Cup challenger all but went down in her trip to England is related in the New York Times following an interview with Captain Irving Johnson, her mate, who returned to United States recently. The Shamrock was torn by sea until her bow was wrenched open; her deck was shredded to a shreds; her hatch was ripped until bucketsful of water poured into her and ten men, all there were aboard her, in an endeavor to submerge on water-soaked food, took her into Southampton after nothing less than a superhuman struggle for seventeen wind-torn days and as many wild nights, according to Johnson's description of the voyage. Interesting paragraphs describing the voyage as taken from The Times follow:

"Even the lights in hurricane lanterns, swung in the hold where the bruised and battered men slept in oilskins in an endeavor to keep dry, were put out, not by the wind but by the sheer drop of the yacht down from the crests into the troughs of the seas.

"Finally, all suffering from the fumes of oil spilled from the lanterns below and unable to digest what food was left, they decided it was better to drown than to starve and to drive on no matter what came. That drive, in a tail of the hatched-out wind, carried them into port.

"Shamrock was rigged and fitted for the home trip at the Harreshoff Yard in Bristol, R.I.

"A yawl rig instead of a ketch one was put on Shamrock for the trip. That was the smartest thing that was done. The steering wheel instead of forward of it as most offshore vessels are spared. But the masts held.

"At Bristol Reef lightship, off the entrance to Newport, the anchor and chain were stowed below deck, as is done on a square rigged when she puts her nose out into the sea. Two small boats were lashed on the deck. Watches, including the day ones, were set. Sail was made and the two cast off at nightfall.

"There was a fresh breeze and everything was battened down. Captain Johnson said. 'There was no time to correct compass. When morning broke, it was apparent the compass had been affected by the anchor chain, and we did not know which side of Nantuxet lightship we had passed. At noon we got a sight of the twenty miles north of the lightship.

Whitewash Oak Bay Representatives In Fragments Cup Final

Saanich Schools Eleven Performs in Great Style, Defeating Bays 4 to 0 at Oak Bay Park Yesterday. Afternoon; Large Crowd of Cheering Youngsters, Parents and Teachers Attend; Score is 2 to 0 at Half-time; Brilliant Play of Saanich Forwards Features Fast Match.

Displaying a brand of football that would have done credit to any senior eleven the Saanich Schools' football team yesterday won the Fragments Cup, emblematic of the district schools football championship, by defeating the Oak Bay representatives 4 to 0 in the final played at the Oak Bay Park. The match was witnessed by a large crowd of cheering youngsters, parents and teachers from all parts of the city. The Saanich team showed a marked superiority throughout the entire match and after the first ten minutes of play there was little doubt as to the winner.

Following the match in beautiful Fragments Cup was presented to the Saanich team by P. F. Curtis, president of the Oak Bay Schools Athletic Association. He congratulated the winners on their fine exhibition and splendid sportsmanship shown throughout the series. Saanich, who will hold the trophy for the next twelve months, succeeded Victoria as school football champions of Victoria and district. This was the second year Oak Bay had reached the final round only to be beaten in the deciding match, as last year the Bays bowed to Victoria.

Saanich reached the finals as the result of a splendid victory over Victoria, while Oak Bay earned the right to oppose them through their win over Esquimalt in the opening round. Both teams were about on an equal in regard to weight and size, but the Saanich players showed much more speed on the ball and holding on to their checks. However, the champions' big advantage was seen in their forwards. Their front line showed the result of good coaching and worked together like a bunch of veterans. Their passing was splendid while another feature was that the two wing players fully realized the advantage of getting the ball into center. The playing of O. Tregalla and Brown, the two wingmen, was praiseworthy and was a factor in the Saanich victory, although every member of the eleven turned in a fine exhibition. Owen Bentley was the scoring star for Saanich, getting his team's first two goals, both of which came in the first half.

The Oak Bay team worked hard and on a couple of occasions looked like they might score but the Saanich defence managed to break up all dangerous attacks.

SAANICH SCORE
Saanich took the offensive from the kick-off and after continued pressure on the Oak Bay goal were awarded a corner kick. G. Tregalla sent a nice centre into the goal mouth which Bentley headed into the net, giving Saanich the lead. A few minutes later the counter-attacked, but found it impossible to get past Russell and Rowlands, the Saanich fullbacks, while Ewing at centre-half was always a thorn in the side of the Oak Bay forwards.

Returning the attack Saanich scored their second goal as the result of a penalty. Clark, the Saanich centre-forward, in trying to go through was fouled by several Oak Bay players and Referee Armstrong blew for a spot kick. Bentley drove a hard shot past Webster, the goalie making a good effort to make the save. Shortly after Bentley was through and made the crossbar shiver with a bullet shot. Oak Bay broke away on several rushes but they never looked like scoring and Saanich still leading by two goals at half-time.

Saanich continued to have the edge on resuming play and five minutes of the half had elapsed when Ewing made the score 3 to 0 with a high ball from thirty yards out, the ball hitting one of the Oak Bay players and bounding into the goal. Oak Bay attacked with vigor and Cook, at inside left, was nearly through but was blocked by Russell and Rowlands. Saanich returned the ball to the other end of the field and Webster connected a corner, but a goal kick followed. The Saanich team clinched their victory halfway through the half when Clark sent Webster with a high shot, following a pass from O. Tregalla.

In a last effort to prevent a shut-out Oak Bay attacked with renewed effort and forced two corners in quick succession. Twice the Oak Bay forwards had men coming up the boards picking up good shots on the Saanich goal but were unable to beat Bigham, who stopped several shots that looked like goals. The final whistle found play in mid-field.

Armstrong refereed. The teams were as follows: Saanich—Bigham; Russell; Rowlands; Alexander; Ewing; Jack; O. Tregalla; A. Tregalla; Clark; Bentley and Brown.

Oak Bay—Webster; Donnelly; Melville; Poynts; Hayward; Swarder; Bryden; Shepperd; Roberts; Cook and L. Foider.

The game in the first half was somewhat slow and both teams seemed unwilling to take advantage of their opportunities. Saanich were the first to score, when Tyson, inside left, scored on a pass from Burns. The score was equalized shortly afterward by Fish's goal on a fine individual effort. The centre-forward of the winners received the ball well out toward the left of the Saanich posts and lobbed it over Tooby's head into the net. The losers disputed the goal, claiming Armstrong to be off-side when he took the pass. The finish was disappointing, since Saanich had been having at least an equal share of the play.

HOCKEY

AN OTTAWA SENATOR PLAY

Time and time again we hear the uncomplimentary criticism about the brand of hockey that the Senators play. They play that "kitty-bar-the-door" game of retaining their lead and taking advantage of all the breaks. But there is a play that apparently doesn't just fall in line with the above code of hockey. Commencing from behind the Senators' blue line the centre shoots the puck into the centre zone. The left wing side and taken up his position up the puck and starts for the opposing blue line on the opposite side of the ice. In the meantime the right wing has skated across to the left wing side and taken up his position behind the opposing team's blue line. As the left wing crosses the blue line he shoots to the centre man who then has the option of either shooting directly on the nets, or should the opposing defence block the way, the right wing has taken up his position on the opposite side of the net and is in equally effective position to score should a pass be made to him. To-morrow—Mr. Goaler Finds a Loop-hole.

High Ruggers Defeat Brentwood College And Capture Trophy

Victoria Boys Win School Rugby Championship and Scott-Moncrieff Cup by 10 to 6 Victory Over Collegians; Lynn Patrick's Tries and Art Chapman's Converts Give City Team Winning Points; Victoria High Led 5 to 3 at Half-time.

Yesterday, playing in a sea of mud, Coach Harry Smith's string of High School rugby stars won the Scott-Moncrieff rugby trophy, symbolic of the school rugby championship of the city by defeating Brentwood College to the tune of 10 to 6. Art Chapman's sensational kicking gave the city team its winning points.

Victoria High fielded a snappy bunch of forwards and the back division was one of the finest ever produced at the school. Speed and strength were featured in both departments and it was this element which enabled the Victoria lads to defeat the college.

Both teams were in splendid condition, with Victoria showing the most aggression. This was evidenced when only by supreme effort were both teams able to keep the other from scoring. Victoria showed a little more snap than did Brentwood, who in the latter part of each half seemed to tire considerably.

After the kickoff Brentwood pressed hard, against the High School and the play was mainly in High School territory and from a free kick Mayhew scored for Brentwood.

Gloomy Gus's Long Reign Is Abruptly Ended By Youngster

Don George, Former U. S. Amateur Champion, Wins Two Out of Three Falls From Flying Tackle Expert Before 10,400 Cheering Los Angeles Fans; Sonnenberg Wins First Fall With Tackle But Is Out of Picture From Then On; Gus Has Shoulder Ligaments Torn, Rendering His Left Arm Useless.

Los Angeles, Dec. 11.—One of professional wrestling's world heavyweight title claimants, Gustavus Sonnenberg, has been elbowed out of the circle of champions by another collegiate youth, Don George.

It occurred here yesterday evening before 10,400 persons who made the crowded Olympic Auditorium ring with shouts of approval as the former national amateur champion from Michigan University disposed of Darmouth and Detroit University's flying tackle exponent, two falls out of three.

The shifting of the heavyweight crown recognized in California and several other states came very much as a surprise, and terminated Gloomy Gus's reign of twenty-three months. During that time he engaged in hundreds of exhibitions over the continent without dropping a match.

Gus, whose gothic tactics revived interest in the business of bone bending after losing Ed "Strangler" Lewis out of his right to a share of the crown claiming spotlight in Boston early in 1929, took the first fall in the customary flying tackle in 14 minutes 7 seconds.

A head scissors and double wrist lock gave George the second fall in 20 minutes 30 seconds after he had taken things pretty much in command. The final fall came without any opposition from Sonnenberg. An arm lock of Japanese variety, put the champion on his shoulders in 19 minutes 52 seconds.

SECOND MEETING
It was the second meeting of the pair. In a previous encounter here, Sonnenberg was declared the winner after the pair had met head-on in the centre of the ring as they launched flying tackles at the same moment. George was out cold, but Gus, appearing groggy, was able to pin his opponent's shoulders to the mat after recovering from the impact.

After the bout yesterday evening Sonnenberg said that the ligaments in his shoulder were torn in the first fall, rendering his left arm useless.

George took up wrestling for a living after making the Olympic team in 1928. He went to the finals in the international games before losing on a decision. The former wrestler lost only one match in his year and a half of the grueling and grueling sport. That was the exhibition Gus won.

Some sort of a decision on the draft question was expected to-day as the minor league committee of nine and the major league representatives try to iron out the remaining details relative to a new draft agreement, most of the news coming from the major league meetings here has originated with a busy band of baseball's old timers who have been seeking jobs and getting them.

But down in the hotel lobbies business was moving briskly with veterans transacting most of it. Two former Athletic catchers, Wally Schang and Cy Perkins, found places with new teams. Schang going to Detroit and Perkins to the New York Yankees. Joe Dugan, former Yankee third baseman, also signed up with Detroit as utility man. George Burns and Chief Bender, two outstanding stars of former days, talked business with John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, and it was expected they would be hired. Burns as coach and Bender as scout.

QUINN AFTER POSITION
Other job seekers were old Jack Quinn, who hoped to catch on with Brooklyn, and George Sisler of the Boston Braves and Lou Blue of the St. Louis Browns, both veteran first basemen. It was understood that both had been given permission to make the best arrangements possible for their services but neither landed a new place.

A discussion concerning possible trades among major league clubs was passed back and forth but no deals were completed. The Chicago White Sox were the centre of most of the talk. Cleveland offered the White Sox Lewis Fossace in exchange for Willie Kamm without getting any response, while Washington sought to obtain outfielder Carl Reynolds from Chicago. Prospects were center in this line as Manager Donie Bush showed signs of interest in obtaining Pitcher Bump Hadley, one of the players offered and an outfielder to boot. The Senators offered outfielder Joe Judge, young first baseman, or Buddy Myers, veteran infielder, to the Boston Red Sox were understood to have offered first baseman Phil Todd to Cleveland in exchange for Johnny Rodapp, but the proposition was turned down.

J.B.A.A. Retain Record In Third Division Badminton

Chalk Up Fourth Straight Victory At Expense of "Y"

Rowing Club Representatives Have Fine Chance to Complete First Half of League Schedule Without Suffering Defeat; Score Was Twelve to Four in Yesterday Evening's Match; Langford Continue to Show Improved Form by Fourteen to Two Victory Over "Y" Second Team.

J.B.A.A.'s Third Division badminton team maintained its undefeated record yesterday evening by administering a 12 to 4 defeat on the Y.M.C.A. first team in a league played at the Gorge gymnasium of the Bays. At the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium the "Y" second team took a 14 to 2 defeat from the strong Langford team which is improving with every match.

It was the Bay's fourth straight win. They have but two remaining fixtures in the first half of the schedule, and have an excellent chance of going right through without defeat.

Cleveland, Dec. 11.—Eddie Shea, two-fisted Italian youngster from Chicago, is up at the top of the heap to-day as a challenger for the world featherweight championship. Shea moved into title range as a result of his victory over Fidel La Barba of Los Angeles, before a record-breaking crowd of 12,000 here yesterday evening.

A profit of $10,000 was realized to buy toys, candy, food and clothes for the poor children at the Christmas charity show.

Shea, always boring in, was on the offensive with a heavy body attack. Referee Patsy Haley quickly awarded his decision to the Chicago boy at the end of the ten rounds of blistering fighting.

BOXER GOES TO HOSPITAL

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Tommy Burns, recent arrival from Scotland, who is fighting out of Buffalo in the welterweight ranks, is resting comfortably in St. Michael's Hospital here to-day.

Burns, a durable two-fisted slugger, was outpunched by an equally formidable slugger in the person of "Red" Brogan, Toronto, at yesterday evening's Poppy Day boxing and wrestling show here. A crushing blow over the heart, followed by two jolting wallop to the head, knocked the Scotman out cold in the fourth round and efforts of physicians at the bedside to revive him proved futile. He regained consciousness in the hospital early this morning. It is not thought he suffered any serious injury.

Y.M.C.A. PLAY GREAT BALL TO DEFEAT C.P.S.

Association Basketballers Spring Surprise 20 to 19 Win Over Lumbermen

Gives Pedens Strangle Hold on Senior "A" Title; West Road and Blue Ribbon Win

Playing inspired basketball, the Y.M.C.A. tall ends in the first half of the senior "A" men's title race, ruined the championship aspirations of the C.P.S. basketballers by scoring a 20 to 19 victory over the lumbermen yesterday evening at the High School gym.

Pedens, winners of the first half, need only one more victory to clinch the local senior championship. In the other two games West Road ran roughshod over the C.P.S. in scoring.

Bill Erickson's Blue Ribbon five defeated the Standard Steam Laundry in an exhibition game 27 to 18.

John Craig and Harold Engelson were the big notes in the great win turned in by last year's local senior "B" champions, with the former collecting eight points and the latter nine. The "Y" set a fast pace at the start of the second half and after gaining a comfortable lead, remained on the defensive and protected it.

Showing the same form that has carried them so far through the season without a defeat, West Road had little trouble winning from the Colonist. Claude and Clarence Sluggert with nineteen points between them, turned in a fine performance.

Lannon played his usual steady game. The teams and individual scores followed:

"Bat" Battalino Is Nearly Even Choice To Whip Chocolate

Fight Faithful Change Their Opinion on Ability of Featherweight Champion for To-morrow Night's Championship Bout at Madison Square Garden; Battalino Figured to Outlast Cuban-Over Fifteen-round Route; Chocolate's Recent Defeats Also Causing Doubt.

New York, Dec. 11.—The conviction seems to be growing on New York's fight faithful that "Bat" Battalino is a real featherweight champion or near enough to it to fight an even battle with Kid Chocolate in their fifteen-round title bout which heads the Christmas fund programme at Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

The New Yorkers who first installed the Cuban as an overwhelming favorite over the almost unknown titleholder have changed their minds now so Chocolate is favored only at a rate of 7 to 5, and the prospects are that they will be held at even odds before the fight.

Still they are a long way from agreeing with the fans from Bat's home town, Hartford, Conn., who are preparing to come down 1,000 strong to help him show the world that he is by far the best in his class.

Battalino's strength and endurance and Chocolate's recent defeats, which have instilled in the minds of some fans a doubt as to whether the kid can "take it" are the determining factors in the fans' change of heart rather than any outstanding ability on the part of the champion. They expect Battalino will be hit but not hard enough to keep him on the floor and he will be able to outlast the challenger over the long fifteen-round route.

Fifteen matches were played off yesterday evening in the Garrison Badminton club championships being held at the Bay Street Armories. Most of the matches were one-sided, although four were outstanding and went to three sets.

Bert Flett, runner-up last year, passed from the running when he was defeated by John Edwards, 15-8, 11-15, 15-10. Flett injured his ankle and was unable to move about the court after the second set, losing the third set without securing a point. It was a decided upset. Hugo Raymond, defending champion, won as he pleased in his first-round match.

Helen Edwards and Mrs. John Edwards won their matches from Janet Lang and Isobel Hedley, respectively. In straight sets but Mrs. Hodgkinson and Hocking advanced to the semi-finals. Raymond and Campbell, another favored pair, also advanced. They are in the quarter-finals and will probably run into the Flett-Gibson match.

A GOOD MATCH
Flett and Gibson, first seeded pair, defeated Matson and Cousland, 15-12, 15-12 in a good match and are now in the semi-finals. Raymond and Campbell, another favored pair, also advanced. They are in the quarter-finals and will probably run into the Flett-Gibson match.

Push Or Chest

Pass Analyzed

By SOL METZGER

The push or chest pass is the most used of all the two-handed passes in basketball. It's mostly a wrist pass, with the thumbs behind the ball and the hands balanced on opposite sides of it to insure mechanical accuracy. It works in scrumming because one can let go of the ball with such rapidity. It's a bit too speedy a pass for short work and is rarely used under the most of distance. But from that measurement on it's a value for accuracy, especially to terminate running at top speed.

One can soon learn to gauge speed and thus feed the ball to such a mate so he gets it without slowing up. Merely centre attention on the target, the middle of his chest or a point above it. The ball behind the ball, the arms following out after the ball. To-morrow—the chest shot.

Legge Says Farm Board Must Carry Load to Keep Prices Above World Parity

Corn continued to slide to-day, with May down to a new low at 76 1/2. Chicago July wheat also dropped to a new low at 71 1/2. Winnipeg May wheat again lost ground to sell at 61 3/4.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Chairman Legge of the Farm Board told the Senate Agricultural committee that he opposed the bill of Senator Capper, designed to give 40,000,000 bushels of wheat now held by the Grain Stabilization Corporation to needy farmers in the drought stricken areas.

Chairman Legge said he objected to throwing that much wheat on the market and that such an act would necessitate the Farm Board re-entering the market in order to keep the price of wheat where it is now.

Mr. Legge also said as long as the American price of wheat stays 20 cents above the world level, the government is going to have nearly all the wheat.

"If the price is maintained 20 cents above world parity, we have just got to take the load," he said.

Carry-over will be at least 100,000,000 bushels less than the 275,000,000 bushels supply on July 1, he added. He said he hopes it will be less than that.

He also opposes withdrawing of the milling in bond privileges.

John MacFarland, head of sales of the Canadian Pool, to-day telegraphed Brookman in Liverpool that the Canadian Pool would work in conjunction with the grain trade in Britain and also with dealers in Europe on the same basis as other exporters.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—Official estimate on average leading crops in Canada the past two years are as follows:

	1930	1929
Fall wheat	534,000	815,000
Spring wheat	24,421,000	24,083,000
All wheat	25,255,000	24,898,000
Oats	12,479,000	13,330,000
Barley	5,926,000	5,539,000

Flax	382,000	582,000

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, Dec. 11.—Wheat: Market continued nervous and somewhat erratic but was mostly heavy with prices lower throughout the session. Opening prices were fractionally lower and prices declined 1 1/2 cents during the first period and with long upreloading based on the weakness in foreign markets and the lack of any real support, export sales overnight being very small.

Around midsession the market recovered most of the earlier loss, but the buying was all local and mostly short covering, but this upturn failed to hold, the market again slipping away into new lows for the day.

The cash month leading the decline, there was no outside buying or selling coming into the market, therefore the trade was featureless.

The demand for cash wheat was very moderate. Offerings were not heavy but buyers were more or less indifferent, only an odd scattered lot being worked in the market.

The Chicago market was very steady, with the Farm Board still supporting the market, and at one time to-day Winnipeg May went to a discount of 1/2 cent, but the situation looked better.

Weather is now very favorable in Australia for harvesting and is mostly clear in Argentina. The situation looks very heavy, but for the time being at least support develops on the declines.

Coarse grains: These markets were all lower, largely in sympathy with the weakness in wheat. But there was very little going on outside of some scattered liquidation by tired holders.

The business passing in the cash markets is very moderate and insignificant as far as reducing stocks are concerned.

Flax: Continued dull and featureless. Lower in sympathy with the general weakness.

Liverpool due 1/4 to 1/2 lower based on Winnipeg.

WHITNEY LETTER

(By Logan & Bryan)

New York, Dec. 11.—Whitney of the Wall Street Financial Bureau, says: MARKET STAND ATTEMPTED

"With the amount of liquidation which was thrown into yesterday's market, I think that we saw in one day about what had been expected to dribble in more casual form into the rest of the week, and that with this temporary cleaning up of the nearby liquidation, we have seen the perfect working out of the market programme predicted here Friday of last week. This, it will be remembered, called for a reappraisal of the approximate low point of the year in the form of a ten-point decline in the industrial averages from the then prevailing level, with the most marked portion of the decline occurring in the first half of the current week. Yesterday's low point accounted for the markets coming to within a fraction of the level required to complete the ten-point decline, and with it, I believe, comes the possibility of at least a rallying tendency for the balance of the week.

"The rather wild reports which were let loose in the 'Street' yesterday were so numerous that it would be hard to enumerate any great part of them here, and it is certain that if one-tenth of them came true, the market would not have a chance on the upside. I believe that most of them will never develop any further than the rumor stage, but it is nevertheless a fairly good piece of trading procedure at this point to admit that the market between now and the week-end can be greatly influenced by elements covered in the day-to-day news. This would dictate a policy of being keenly alert to the possibilities of an advance, but at the same time call for a day or so of deferment in the matter of making actual commitments, with the idea in mind that the market is not sufficiently removed as yet from the area of danger to be able to stand even the one sizable piece of unfavorable news that has a way of cropping out at the wrong moment. If we can pass through the next forty-eight hours safely I think we will have put behind us the year's acute troubles, or at least those developments on the surface of finance which in the absence of any fundamental change between now and the year end have to be reckoned with for their effect on security prices.

"Fundamental factors, many of which have been pointed out here in the last two weeks, appear to be shaping up for a rather poor January exhibition, and it looks as if the market will have a good deal to contend with in the early weeks of the new year. At the present time, however, I think we are more or less under the influence of surface developments, and that, if we can survive the next day or two without too much adversity we will hear little more of the locally unfavorable type of news to the year end."

Jantzen Knitting Issues New Shares

San Francisco, Dec. 11.—Jantzen Knitting Mills' stockholders, who recently voted to increase capitalization and split stock, have been notified by J. R. Dodson, treasurer, that new shares will be issued December 20, 1930. The Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust Company, San Francisco, transfer agents for the firm, will issue two new shares for each old share surrendered, properly endorsed.

The Jantzen officials urge stockholders to immediately forward all certificates to the stock transfer department of the Wells Fargo Bank and Trust Company. As a result of the action of the board of directors in splitting the stock on a two for one basis, which was affirmed by a 74,001 share vote of the stockholders, the company will currently have outstanding 200,000 new shares instead of 100,000 shares as heretofore, and will have an additional 100,000 shares authorized but unissued.

The right will attach to all stockholders to purchase the treasury stock proportionate to their holdings, when the directors may decide upon further issuance.

Interest Lacking Speculatively In Canada Markets

(By Mason & Diespecker)
Toronto, Dec. 11.—The public reaction to the announcement following the service stations meeting was good and the market held well. It had been rumored for some time that shareholders could expect a substantial bonus on account of the enviable earnings position of the company, but the action of the directors was most conservative and does not detract any from the good merit of this security. There is no definite improvement looked for in the near term markets and the best is that prices will hold well in view of the lack of speculative interest prevailing at the present time.

Canadian Wheat Stores Up in Week

Winnipeg, Dec. 11.—Stores of Canadian wheat rose during the past week, according to figures released today by the board of grain commissioners at Port William. The statement for the week ending December 5 shows a total storage of 212,667,878 bushels, as compared with 208,077,588 bushels a week ago.

Western country elevator stocks increased by more than 1,000,000 bushels during the week to 86,089,417 bushels. Port William and Port Arthur elevators contained 28,505,907 bushels and eastern lake port elevators 24,309,828 bushels.

CANADIAN FORD HEAD OPTIMISTIC

W. R. Campbell, Ford of Canada president, is optimistic in his communications to Ford dealers. Although motor sales are generally down in the Dominion for the year by 40 per cent, sales of Fords in Canada approximate those of 1929. In his opinion the Dominion has come through the depression period with creditable showings.

Savings Banks Gains Indicate Depression Now Leveling Off

New York, Dec. 11.—Banking representatives told the National Thrift Club members at a luncheon today that gain in financial advertising and appropriations for 1931 and reports of $28,485,000 in savings banks and trust company deposits indicated that depression in business is leveling off and nearing an end.

Forty per cent of the company's banks, it was disclosed, have decided to enlarge their appropriations for the New Year; forty per cent will retain last year's figures and the others will cut expenditures.

An average gain of 2 1/2 per cent is the net result of the budget making.

FARMERS GOING TO SASKATOON

Saskatoon, Sask., Dec. 11.—Some 300 delegates of farm organizations in Saskatchewan will be here from January 12 to 16 when annual meetings will be held by the Saskatchewan agricultural societies, the Saskatchewan Field Husbandry Association, the Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association and the Provincial Seed Fair.

OVER-PRODUCTION AGAIN GETS BLAME

Boston, Dec. 11.—An organization of farmers broad enough to plan production and control marketing, and adequate tariff protection, are the hope of agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, told the American Farm Bureau Federation today.

"The root of our troubles is over-production," he asserted.

WALL ST. SENTIMENT MIXED REGARDING MARKET FUTURE

New York, Dec. 11.—Sentiment in Wall Street regarding the immediate future of the stock market is mixed. The list has given a fairly good account of itself. Good stocks have rallied, but more speculative issues have borne the brunt of decline. However, as the low levels of November are approached there is a tendency to hold aloof on the long commitments pending the test of the market's ability to resist these low points. Should the lows be violated the market doubtless will make new lows. But these lows will not be as far down from the minimum prices of last month as the latter were down from the previous low of the year because stocks are now fairly well deflated. In many instances present prices are more than representative of value.

BUSINESS PROSPECT
Various trade services to-day made observations on the future of business that nearly coincided. Standard Trade and Securities does not see much prospect of an upturn this month or in January or February.

"However," it adds, "March should witness a fairly pronounced upturn. Among the industries which have held up relatively well date and which should figure prominently in the next major upturn in general business are chain stores, chemicals, cigarette manufacturing companies, package foods and dairy products, and the electric light and power and telephone division of the utility industry."

Moody's picks as industries which should recover more or less promptly with the turn in general business: automobiles, chain stores, chemicals, electrical equipment, electric power and light, gas, railroads, steel, telephones, tires and rubber.

The monthly analysis of the business outlook by the Alexander Hamilton Institute said to-day: "Below the surface forces making for recovery have gained in strength. The low level of prices, the need of replenishing goods, the large supply of credit available for financing expansion have created an increasingly favorable situation."

SHARE CONVERSION
The probable tendency of reducing the outstanding shares of companies whose stocks are selling low, mentioned in this column several weeks ago, is again being heard in Wall Street.

Jas. H. Oliphant & Co., to-day make some interesting comment regarding the prospect of splitting down shares of Radio Corporation. Back in 1924, this very thing occurred in radio. It was then selling at $5 a share and was exchanged on the basis of one new for four old. "It is interesting to consider hypothetically," says Oliphant, "that if radio were to exchange again one new share for five present shares, there would be only 1,026,000 shares available for trading purposes since General Electric and Westinghouse Electric owns 61 per cent of the total."

Radio stock has been meeting heavy selling of late. The preferred "B" stock made a record low and the dividend safety is not the best. Regarding the Westinghouse and General Electric holdings, many in the Street fear that these companies have done considerable unloading, thus increasing the floating supply materially.

and the effects of a diversified line of paper products.

United Farmers Take $32,000 Loss In Grain Trading
Toronto, Dec. 11.—Shareholders in the United Farmers' Co-operative Ltd., at their annual meeting held here, voiced much criticism of the directors over a $32,000 loss in grain options. "Officials of the company were restrained from expressing political principles at variance with those of the United Farmers of Ontario by a motion put by Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P. for Southeast Grey, which was carried."

Miss MacPhail asserted that letters dealing with New Zealand butter, purported to have been written by V. A. Hooper, the company's creamery manager, had seriously menaced her election in the last Dominion campaign.

Big Transactions Aim to Establish Income Tax Losses

New York, Dec. 11.—Several huge individual transactions in the stock exchange Wednesday were said in brokerage circles to represent special transactions to establish losses for income tax purposes.

These transactions, occurring late in the day, included a sale of 60,000 shares of General Electric at $45.12, off $1.75; 30,500 shares of Chrysler at $15.17, off $1.00, and 20,000 shares of St. Paul at $5.50, off 75 cents.

Pacific Telephone Profits Reported

San Francisco, Dec. 11.—Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, a San Francisco Stock Exchange listing, reports a decrease of $2,202,655 in undivided profits for the first ten months of 1930, compared with the same period in 1929. The company earned total operating revenues of $88,534,183, in the first ten months, compared with $84,213,170 in the like period last year. Net after all charges for the two periods amounted to $14,370,109 in 1930 and $13,509,451 in 1929. Gross earnings in October aggregated $9,112,835, which compares with $8,818,526 in October of last year while net was $1,629,183 as against $1,443,737.

—GREAT QUITTING SALE—

Seven For a Secret

By MARY WEBB

Southward, across the moor, two men were driving, and to this question they might both have answered: "What dun Gillian matter? Gillian Lovelin's all the world to me!"

But as they drove with dogged faces not a word did they say. Isiah flogged the mare, and the purple moor sprang to meet them, the far hills ran towards them, tree after tree leapt on them. The steple of Weeping Cross came to them discreetly, but very fast.

Robert, sitting with his arms folded, without a hat (having forgotten it), was glad of the speed. Though he knew what he would find, he was glad to be going to find it soon. It was better to know the worst. Especially as it was necessary to know whether this had happened with Gillian's consent or not; because, if not, he was going to kill Elmer, and he would rather kill him while he was angry. He hated killing things. He knew exactly how he would do it—chocking the life out of the man with his powerful hands. His brown hair lifted in the wind; his brow was lined beneath it; his eyes were weary. It is unpleasant for a man not to know if he is to be hanged or not, and Robert did not know.

So he was almost absent-minded when Isiah, pointing with his whip to some winter wheat, said: "Faitly! And he was intensely glad when the long high street closed up like a tele-cable before the mare's reckless canter. They pulled up with a slide before the 'Drover's Arms,' and Isiah went in. He stood in the dining-room door.

"Ra!" he said.

The culprit said nothing. Isiah pointed to the door.

"Leave me and Elmer to talk," said he.

Gillian went into the hall.

"Gillian!" said Robert softly.

So Robert was here! This was cruel. She trembled as white as the landlady's newly-stained doorstep. She stood shrinking against the wall and did not answer.

"Gillian!"

Oh, that kind voice! Oh, that voice so full of tenderness and strength! It drew her as the shepherd's voice the sheep—as cooing dove draws doves the deep murmur of the sea draws the sailor.

"Gillian!"

Across the hall, down the six white steps, over the cobbles, it drew her. She stood beside the cart. She laid her small hand as if for comfort on the mare's panting, shining flank.

Robert was looking at her. He was going to make her look at him. Oh, grief! Oh, bitter pain!

Slowly she lifted her face, her eyes. There he was—Robert, the man she loved, with shoulders a little stooping, with hand quiet on the reins, with mouth for once grim and forbidding, with deep-set eyes, gazing, probing, seeing through and through her very being. Love met love. Love forswore and deserted met love the wanderer, the forlorn, all dim with tears.

He had seen all. He knew of the kisses, of the naked shoulders, the marriage of loveless bodies, the shame. With a cry of anguish she covered her face and turned away. "Nay, Gillian. You must answer first."

Obediently she waited.

"Did Elmer make ye stay?"

There was a long silence. Little breezes lifted and sank in the half-unfurled leaves of the chestnut tree in the garden of the "Drover's Arms." In its top bough a blackbird sang musically. It was as though he passed the whole of life through the crucible of his song and turned it to sweetness. The drone of voices came through the window. The mare stirred and sighed. From far away came the rumble of the reed-bed pipes wailing. The ivy lapped upon the house. Earth and air seemed to be waiting for a verdict. And with the swift intuition of love Gillian saw Robert's purpose. If she said Elmer had made her stay, she would be uttering the death sentence of both men. If she said she wished to stay—what? Only that for ever and ever Robert would think she loved Elmer, would never speak to her or look at her. She would be married to Elmer. Even now, if she told the truth, she might be saved. But that look! That dreadful look in Robert's face!

She gazed up at him as a sea-maiden might look at a sailor lover when she heard the call of the Merman King and sank into deep water. One look, and all was over.

"I stayed because I'd lief stay, Robert," she said. "And you munna lay hand on him."

Then, with a gasping sob, she fled into the house.

CHAPTER XXIII

"I'll thank ye to tell me," said Isiah, as soon as Gillian had gone, "what ye mean, juggling my girl off from whome, stopping the night over, making her a nay-word, and fetching me out of my bed—and my farm all of a lantern-puff, with never so much as a bite or sup?" A pretty courant you've got me!

The sentence rose to cumulative heights and the voice rose with it. Elmer poured out a cup of tea, buttered some toast, and took it across to him. Isiah was speechless with rage.

"No need to be so angered, Mr. Lovelin. I'll make everything all right."

"Then it's true?"

"It's true as the cob cast a shoe."

"Dunna I see the blacksmith's pincers sticking out of your pocket this very minute? Oh, you black son of Satan!"

"Did ye or did ye not?"

"I dunno what you mean."

Isiah rang the bell. It sounded somewhere in the great empty house, and after a long time the landlady entered.

"How many rooms did ye keep for this gentleman?" queried Isiah.

"One, sir. We hadn't more." She was on fire with curiosity.

"Oh! what a fool the fellow is!" thought Elmer.

But Isiah was no fool.

"Then if I'd come after all, I'd a had to sleep on the floor!" speechless friend! shouted Isiah.

"We didn't know you thought of coming, Mr. Lovelin, nor that you knew this gentleman," soothed the landlady.

"That's the last arrand I'll give to you, young man!" said Isiah. "Thank ye, m'am, that was all I wanted to know."

"Any time, Mr. Lovelin, if you'd write," she murmured, and withdrew, knowing nothing.

"Would a thousand pound—" began Elmer.

"A thousand pound? For my girl's good name? And you've got the impudence!" Isiah was speechless with a spate of confused words that struggled for utterance.

"Two thousand! Hush! You dunna want to fight an old man, do ye? Then listen to what I'll tell ye. There's no cure for this but banns up next Sunday ever is. And no more to be said."

"But—"

"It's no use ifting and anding. I'll tell ye what'll come to pass if you marry my girl—and if you dunna marry her, I'll settle ten thousand on her. The farm she'll have when I go. And there'll be a tidy bit of money, all willed to her and you. I'll learn you all I know. I'll make ye rich, respected, a churchwarden, if ye like. A magistrate if ye like. If you want a better house, I'll build one. If you want a better nag, I'll buy one."

"Is that that, Mr. Lovelin. I don't need bribery."

"Well, what in God's name is it, then?"

"I—I just can't, Mr. Lovelin."

"You just can't! Dear to goodness! That Lovelin of the Gwifas should come to this! Down on his knees pleading with a young waster to marry his girl. Now I'll tell ye what come to pass if you dunna."

He stood up, his silver hair and beard shining against the dark high mantelpiece, with its carving of a stag hunt. He spoke quite softly, even persuasively.

STRIKE AT CADIZ, SPAIN

Cadiz, Spain, Dec. 11.—A general strike was declared here yesterday evening by all unions in sympathy with the stone-masons, who quit work when employers refused to accept conditions presented by the workmen.

"My First Public Speech"

MY FIRST public speech was an attempt to heal dissension within the ranks of the Conservative party in Esquimalt. Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General, recalled when asked for the story of his first effort at public speaking.

"In 1903, when I was twenty-four, my father, the late Charles E. Pooley, K.C., who had represented Esquimalt in the Legislature for many years, was afflicted with failing eyesight. The fact was not generally known and he came under criticism for 'high-hatting' his supporters and 'getting too proud to know his old friends.'"

"At a meeting of the 'faithful,' held either at Lamson Street School or at the Blue Ribbon Hall, considerable rough stuff was indulged in.

"My annoyance drove me to my feet. 'I do not remember much of what I said, but I told them, among other things, that at times dad does not even know his own son on the street.'"

"Exactly what I said I cannot recall but my remarks appeared effective and adequate to the occasion."

Mr. Pooley recalled that an operation for cataract, performed in Germany, later restored his father's vision.

Mr. Pooley said that the turning point in his life was on the evening of March 28, 1912, when he was first elected to represent Esquimalt in the Legislature.

"Father lived just long enough to press my hand when told Esquimalt was again Conservative."

"It was a most unusual victory. I not only defeated Mr. Jardine, who had held the seat for five years, but I also defeated the party which comprised the natives in an old Lincolnshire village, but what a boomerang I met," says Harold Palmer of the Chamber of Commerce to-morrow.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL POOLEY

them, it was rather the outcome of careful organization by many friends. In political contests I still rely for victory on thorough preparation rather than on my speeches," Mr. Pooley remarked with a laugh.

"I was a seventeen-year-old kid in the Canadian army and I tried to surprise the natives in an old Lincolnshire village, but what a boomerang I met," says Harold Palmer of the Chamber of Commerce to-morrow.

"Carrots! In what, my dear?" said Mr. Longears.

"In that big bag I saw you hopping away with early this morning," spoke the little orphan rabbit child. "Oh, I saw you, Uncle Wig!" she went on, using the baby talk she was allowed.

"I saw you with the bag and Nurse Jane said maybe you were going after carrots."

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggle, blinking one eye, "maybe. And now Baby Bunty, pass your plate and I will give you some more cabbage pudding."

"Oh, cabbage pudding! Fine! How I love it!" cried Bunty.

"Wiggle!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears. "That child has had some cabbage pudding!"

"I know she has," answered Mr. Longears. "But I think it will be good for her to have a bit more. Here, Baby Bunty!"

"Oh, my goodness!" said Mrs. Longears. "The truth of the matter was Uncle Wiggle did not want Bunty to ask so many questions about that big bag. Soon the other bunnies would start teasing him."

And the best way to keep Baby Bunty from asking questions, said Uncle Wiggle to himself, "is to fill her up with cabbage pudding." Which he started to do.

It is a good thing, though, that soon after the cabbage pudding was all eaten, for if Baby Bunty had been given all she would take something might have happened. However she forgot to ask any more about the big bag and Uncle Wiggle was glad.

After supper Mr. Longears went up to his room, pulled from beneath the bed the bag of toys and, locking the door began to look at them. Such a lot of drums, dolls, pop guns, skates, jumping jacks and fire engines as there were.

"And this isn't all!" chuckled the bunny uncle. "I'll have to get a few more bags of toys from the places Santa Claus leaves them, to have enough for my forty-sixteen children. But now I'm going to have a look at my own football!"

When gathering the toys for his child, Uncle Wiggle had seen a big football that he bought for himself. He had always wanted a football to kick around, but, since he was a small rabbit boy, he had never been able to get one.

"And when the spring comes again, I'm going out and have some fun with this football!" murmured Mr. Longears. He held up the leather bag, shaped like an egg, inside of which was a rubber bladder, blown up with air. There was a great deal of air in the football.

Uncle Wiggle bounced it on the floor of his room, and wished he might kick it, but he did not quite dare to do this. "I must think it through the window and then all the children would come rushing up here to find out what was going on," thought the bunny.

Looking toward the window, as he bounced his football again, Uncle Wiggle was surprised to see the wolf climbing in. The Bad Chap had scrambled up an old-fashioned chimney, and was like a ladder on the bungalow wall outside the window. And as Uncle Wiggle had his window open for fresh air, the wolf had climbed in.

"Oh, dear!" murmured the bunny. "Surprised to see me, aren't you?" growled the Wolf.

"Well, yes, a little!" whispered Mr. Longears.

"Bah! Why don't you tell the truth and say a lot?" snickered the Bad Chap. "What have you there? A big plum?" cried the Wolf looking at the yellow football blown up hard with air. "Give it to me! I'm fond of plums!" I'll eat that and nibble you!" Before Uncle Wiggle could say that the football wasn't a plum, the Wolf impudently grabbed the toy away from the rabbit gentleman and gave it a hard bite. And then all he did was to "Whoosh!" Out blew the air, puffing so hard on the Wolf that it blew him right out of the open window into the snow below.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggle looking out and seeing the Bad Chap run away. "Don't you want another bite of my football plum?"

"No, indeed!" howled the Wolf. "One bite was enough!" Then the bunny mended the hole in his football and put it away. And if the doorman will wrap itself around the milk bottle so it won't freeze into ice cream, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggle's soap bubbles.

Penny-pinching Wife Who Can't Learn to Enjoy Prosperity—Is a Girl of 19 Old Enough to Care for Her Infant Sister?—Discarded Wife

DEAR MISS DIX—My wife and I were married when we were young and poor. We both worked very hard and saved, looking forward to the time when we would have plenty. That time has arrived. I am wealthy and ready to enjoy life. I want to travel, to entertain, to belong to a nice social group, but my wife refuses. She has grown economical to the point of stinginess and is not willing to spend a penny that can be avoided. I had even to buy a home secretly without telling her until all the papers were signed, because she would never have agreed to an expensive house. Now we have the lovely home, but my wife will never go out with me because she is busy with the house and the children, although I beg her to hire servants. I give her more money than she knows what to do with, but she banks it all. Is there any possible way to make her spend enough money on servants and clothes so that she will enjoy life and entertain and have friends?

Answer: If you will make your wife understand that you are going to get some good out of your money by traveling and entertaining and you tell her that she must either keep up with you or be left behind, she will loosen her grip on her pocketbook. Possibly she may love you more than she does money, but I doubt it, for the passion of the miser for his hoard transcends all human affections.

I know of a case in which a father worth millions let his only son die for want of the medical attention that would in all probability have saved him, and who let his only daughter, who was married to a fine but poor man, literally perish for want of the ordinary comforts of life.

Women run to extremes, and when they are stingy they are incredibly tightfisted. They get a mania for saving and pinch every nickel until the buffalo howls in agony. The highest joy that existence offers them is the entry in their bankbook, and to see this get bigger and bigger they are willing to sacrifice themselves and their families.

Evidently your wife belongs to this group of feminine tightwads, and the hope of ever changing her is slight, because spending has become a pain to her. She cannot endure to part with a dollar. You will never be able to make her realize that preserving intact the bond between husband and wife is more important than buying another government bond, nor that giving her children the right sort of environment and social contacts will be worth more to them than any inheritance she can leave them, nor that preferred friends are better than preferred stocks. She is like a dead woman with her eyelids weighted down by dollars.

It is one of life's little ironies that we can turn good into evil if we overdo it, and that often our virtues develop into vices, and this is never more vividly illustrated than when we let thrift grow into miserliness. This is the easiest thing in the world to do.

It is obviously the duty of us all to live well within our incomes and to lay up something for the rainy day and the old age that are bound to come to us all if we live. In order to do this it is often necessary for us to deny ourselves many pleasures and luxuries and indulgences that we crave. But we should not push this too far. Doing without things gets to be a habit just as spending does. We can do without the things we want until we atrophy our desires and we come to the place where we no longer want anything.

So there should be moderation in saving even as in spending. It is folly to put off all enjoyment until some distant future because we may never reach it at all. Nothing is truer than the old proverb about getting nuts to eat after we have no teeth to crack them. Or what use to sit down to a feast when you have neither appetite nor digestion for it and the only food that agrees with you is crackers and milk? Of what avail to buy a ticket around the world when your poor old rheumatic bones cry out for the home radiator and you are miserable away from your familiar surroundings?

It is just as much a duty for the rich to spend as it is for the poor to save, and no money is better invested than that which is spent on making a beautiful and comfortable home, in giving children advantages, in the broadening of view that travel gives, in hospitality, in giving to those less fortunate than oneself and in generally making life soft and gracious.

Avarice is a vice that grows on one as insidiously as the dope habit. It is a vice to which age is particularly addicted, and it is well for prosperous men and women who have acquired the saving habit in their youth not to let it grow upon them and turn them into mere money-grubbers.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a girl just nineteen. I have a sister of seven and a brother of four. A few weeks ago my mother died, leaving a newborn baby girl. I want to keep the baby and raise it, but my father thinks I am too young and that it would be best to board it out for at least two years. If I were married and had a baby of my own I would have to rear it and I would be thought old enough to do it. Do you think I am too young to mother my motherless sisters and brother? My father makes good money and says he will not marry again. We have agreed to abide by your decision in this matter.

HELEN.

Answer: I think you are a very fine and unselfish girl, Helen, to desire to burden yourself at your age with your baby sister. It is a lot of care and worry and calls for a lot of work and self-sacrifice to rear a baby, and you will have to give up many of the good times that belong to your time of life to walk the colic and tell bedtime stories and run after restless little feet. But if you are willing to make the sacrifice there is no reason why you should not do it and make the best possible substitute to the baby for the mother she has lost.

As you say, if the baby were your own nobody would question your ability to take proper care of her. There are plenty of nineteen-year-old mothers whose youngsters take prizes in better-baby shows. Indeed, the modern young mothers' babies are generally more scientifically reared than those of the older mothers because the young mothers pin their faith to some baby doctor's book as if it were the Bible and go by it.

And you will be able to give your baby sister something that not the highest-priced baby specialist can give it. That is love, and, quietly enough, it seems that babies cannot live without love. They have to be petted and kissed and cuddled into taking hold of life, and that is why they often live and thrive in dirt and squalor if they have some woman to cuddle them and hold them warm on her breast, while they die like flies in the most sterilized and antiseptic and scientifically run asylums.

At any rate, if you are ever to have the baby keep it from the first. Don't let someone else have it for two years and then bring it back to you. It will be much easier for you to develop it from the first than it will be for you to take it after its habits are formed.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a woman of twenty-five getting a divorce from my husband after three years of married life. I was satisfied to go on forever, but he was not. He had been married before and had a boy, and he thinks that his duty and love belong to his first wife and child, so we are getting a divorce so he can go back to them. After I am divorced I will have to support myself. I am slightly hard of hearing, which makes it difficult to get a position. Also, I am soon to become a mother. I have not told my husband, for I think he would blow out my brains if I did. What shall I do?

MRS. S. A.

Answer: I certainly think you should tell your husband about the baby that is coming and at least give him a chance to decide which of his numerous families he thinks has the greater claim upon him. Inasmuch as he had deliberately broken off relations with his first family, I think he should stand by you.

Lots of people get divorces and then are sorry for it when they cool off and get over their mad. If we had trial divorces instead of trial marriages it would save a lot of domestic misery and messes like the one you have got in through no fault of your own.

North Addresses Large Gathering In Victoria West

Making his last plea to the electorate of Victoria, Joseph North, whose wife, Mrs. Margaret North, is a candidate for the police commission at the civic poll to-day, addressed an audience that completely filled Stanley Hall in Victoria West yesterday evening. Mr. North spoke for about an hour, dealing at length with the police department. He urged the audience to help him in his plans for a new commission. A vote for Mrs. North would be a vote for him, he said.

MAYOR REVIEWS CITY FINANCES FOR YEAR: FINANCES EXPLAINED

equitable compensation for all that yet to be acquired. I am speaking only of course, of those not yet secured by the city.

"But at this point the city fell down. It required a two-thirds vote of the council to secure the passage of a money bill, and this failed to secure sufficient support to pass it.

"Some aldermen took the position that they did not want the city involved in a series of law suits to settle the value of those properties or frontages that would have to be expropriated. At first sight that seems to be a fair argument but we all knew that it was finally inevitable, as it was quite apparent that everybody would not settle with us. And it was for that very reason that we secured the services of the two valuers to give us an idea of our approximate liability. In addition to that the per cent who have settled with us have gone a very long way to establish the value of land in that district.

WANTED VOTE

"Others took the position that the voters should be asked if they agreed to the project at all, before the expropriation took place. The result was you have the absurd situation of asking the voters if they will sanction the undertaking after we had secured 65.4 per cent of the properties required. Surely if ever there was a time to do that it was before we had purchased any property at all.

"As you see the city now finds itself in the position of owing 65.4 per cent or thereabouts of this frontage—paid for in cash, or by the process of a rebate in taxes or exchange of properties, and the owners having full use of it, just as though no deal had been made.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

"Now may I say a word with reference to unemployment, a condition not only prevalent in Victoria, but of world-wide concern. The city has been faced with the problem and has done its best, from a financial viewpoint, to grapple with it. As you all know, the Dominion Government earmarked a sum of $20,000,000 towards this relief, provided the provinces gave a similar amount, i.e., each party putting up twenty-five per cent, of the whole. The city providing the other fifty per cent. We in common with other districts expected to secure fifty per cent of the cost of the work undertaken in order to relieve a Dominion-wide crisis. On investigation we found that the act was interpreted on different lines to what at first seemed natural.

"The government took the position that they were only paying fifty per cent of the actual amount spent on labor, leaving the city with the burden of supplying the other fifty per cent, plus the entire cost of materials.

"Now, there is very little civic work that can be done that does not entail between fifty and sixty per cent of its cost for materials, so that we found ourselves in the position of having to carry the greater part of the load.

"We based our requirements on an expenditure of $120,000, and have tried to select work where the smallest possible amount of materials is required, so that the greatest proportion of the money could go for wages. $42,000 of this will be provided by the government, the remaining $78,000 will have to be put up by the local taxpayer.

"In an earnest effort to try and further relieve the problem, especially as far as the single men are concerned, the city has established on the Esquimalt Water Works watershed a little beyond Goldstream, a cordwood camp. This camp has cost in the neighborhood of some $8,000, and the timber is from logged off land that has been gone over by Messrs. Fairservice and Gerien, who purchased it prior to the acquisition by the city. We appreciated from the start that all men would not be expert cutters, but it should be remembered that the council was trying its best to find an outlet for the surplus labor in order to assist over the period of depression.

"We arranged a price of $3 per cord and provided all tools and saw filers, the trees already being felled. This price compares with $1.75 to $1.95 per cord, plus providing own tools and felling own trees, which is the usual rate. The camp is in charge of an excellent cook, and board and camp is provided at $1 per day.

"CARE OF SINGLE MEN

"Now no member of the council suggests for a moment that this is a large money-making proposition, but we do say that an effort has been made to take care of some of the single men and it will certainly do so as a temporary measure during abnormal times if they desire to use it.

"And may I add that this unemployed problem brings me back once more to my oft-repeated request for a steady development programme on capital account, which I have stated I have failed to secure the necessary support to carry into effect.

"If you will refer to or remember my address of last year, I stated definitely from this platform, that while I desired to borrow money for capital improvements, I did not propose to increase the city's debt. In other words, I took the position that we were paying off our debt during the next ten years at an average rate of $400,000 per year, never less than $200,000, and never more than $600,000 (1937) and that we should limit our new borrowing to the amount reduced each year. In other words, the debt would be allowed to remain at a stationary figure. I see no reason whatever why that principle should not be adopted, and as the city grows, the cost of carrying that debt will be spread over a greater number of people.

"Now, I suggest to you that no finer example is necessary to support my contention than that created in this very year by the unemployment problem. Here we are confronted with an unlooked for expenditure, all to be provided out of revenue for that very purpose.

"Let us assume that we had adopted my policy of a loan by-law for, say, even $250,000 per year, we would have been in the position of saying to the government we are going to spend $250,000, approximately forty per cent, of which is for labor, or $100,000, under the provisions of the Unemployed Relief Act, you add a like amount, and in round figures we would have had $350,000 to spend during the winter months, without any increase in the tax rate, and enabling us to cope adequately with the unemployed problem and provide ourselves with some very much needed improvements.

"I am glad to say, however, that at least some of the aldermen are beginning to see the necessity and reason for adopting this policy, as is evidenced by the passing of the Willows and Fire Fighting Equipment bill. In both these cases some of the aldermen who previously voted consistently against a progressive policy of this nature have changed their minds and are now ready to realize that you cannot conduct a big business that requires an expansion and development programme on the same lines as you would a retail store establishment. No matter what we may think, or what we may like, a city business can only be compared and conducted on the same lines as a retail store, and that is constantly developing and opening new territory.

SMALLER COUNCIL

"I stated a year ago that I was very much in favor of a smaller council, preferably one with four aldermen in place of the present year of office has added, if need be, to my conviction on this point, and you may well ask me then: 'why do you not introduce it?' and I answer simply because it would not be possible to carry it without amending legislation, and so it would be futile to attempt to do so. If I take it you can readily realize how stupid it would be to ask your representatives to vote themselves out after having quite naturally and quite properly worked hard to vote themselves in?

"As the Municipal Act stands at present, the council of a city municipality can consist of eleven members as a maximum and four as a minimum. This number can be altered by by-law passed by the council, but must be supported by the electors at a vote on the point.

BONUSED INDUSTRIES

"I am glad to advise you that no extended default has taken place in the city's bonused industries. The woolen mill has taken care of its commitments promptly. The elevator company has had, as was to be expected by those who appreciated the conditions surrounding its formation, a very trying period. It has recently passed into the hands for a temporary period—of the Alberta Wheat Pool, a concern who own and operate 440 country elevators in the Province of Alberta, and who under those circumstances are well able to keep it filled up and in use, the one weak chain in the whole original economic structure.

"In the arrangement made between the elevator company and the Wheat

Pool, we have been protected to the extent of all the overage payments of interest, taxes, insurance and bonus, and in addition the interest payment due on January 3 next is guaranteed the pool. The pool under the present arrangements will be in possession of the plant until next August, and I hope that by then a renewal agreement satisfactory to all parties will have been entered into.

"There has been no change in the city's legal standing regarding the cold storage plant since the last public meeting held a year ago. I should, however, advise you of this fact. There has been, and is yet, a large number of people who think that the city guaranteed the bonds of the undertaking. That impression unfortunately prevails among a large number of the bondholders themselves. As a matter of information the city's guarantee only covers an agreed proportion of the company's earnings if certain conditions laid down in the by-law are carried out.

DEBT REDUCTION

"Just as a matter of information I may say that the city has paid off some $232,594.00 of its debt this year. There is no credit due to the present council for that. That condition develops automatically, because the necessary arrangements are made for its redemption when the debt is incurred. I mentioned this only that you may know what has been done. The gross debt now stands at $15,879,190.00, and the amount in the Sinking Fund is $3,460,000.00. This amount is up to requirement and is roughly 21.5 per cent.

PARKS

"The council has accepted during recent months the resignation of your parks superintendent, T. R. Purdy, after seventeen years' service. We have engaged in his place from over forty applicants, a young man who has had a university training and secured, by his own initiative, a university degree in his chosen profession. While young in years he has had considerable experience both in the west and in the east. His family have been residents of Victoria for a number of years. We had many desirable applicants for the position and it was no easy matter to make the selection in view of the possibilities the natural beauty of the city offer from a development viewpoint, and particularly with the idea that sooner or later the city may secure from the government a yearly grant toward a beautification programme to be undertaken by a permanent Parks Board.

"In order to secure all the data we can we have instructed the new superintendent to spend some days looking over the parks area in Ontario before leaving for the west and on his way out to spend sufficient time in Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary, in order to secure, if possible, any new ideas in vogue in those cities.

TAX COLLECTIONS

"The city collected 90.77 per cent of its levy in 1929 and during the current year to the end of November 89.26 per cent, was collected, and with a month yet to go, I hope that the small difference will be made up to compare with last year. This, to my mind, is an exceptionally good showing considering the times.

"The taxable assessment last year was, land, $24,986,790.00; improvements, $30,000,480.00; total, $54,987,270.00; for 1931, land $25,087,844.00; improvements, $31,230,810.00. These assessments will produce at a rate of 40 1/2 mills, $1,847,673.00 or $29,129.00 more than in 1930.

WATERWORKS SYSTEMS

"Up to November 30, last, your Book Lake system records $10,200.00 more revenue than at the same time last year, and the Esquimalt system $1,685.00 more for the same period.

ARREARS OF TAXES

"Collection on this account to the end of November total, $186,000.00 odd, as against an estimate of $199,375.00. This is an item that is very difficult to estimate.

"Two sales of these properties have been made during the year—one holder has paid up in full, and one other has transferred his interests. The city has reduced its liability from $118,100.00 to $108,000.00 and all those in arrears are gradually pulling up."

CANDIDATES SPEAK

Before opening the meeting the Mayor issued an invitation to his opponent, John Dean, to speak, offering him a twenty-minute period after his own address. The invitation was not accepted.

Alderman W. Cullin and Alderman H. O. Litchfield referred to their activities on the council and announced their platforms for the present campaign. John Harvey, W. D. Todd, R. T. Williams, Mrs. Alice McGregor, William White, Miss M. M. Fraser also sketched their platforms. F. E. George and Dr. Stanley Miles spoke in support of their candidature for the school board. E. E. Heath, Mrs. Dorothy North and W. E. Standen sought support in the police commission contest.
